Facts and Figures on Princeton's New Public Transportation System

Princeton's first public transportation system is moving into high gear and you could be taking your first bus ride in early April.

Everyone in town is invited to Borough Hall at 8 p.m. next Thursday, March 21, to discuss the proposed new bus routes. See map on page 10.

Borough Council has introduced an amendment to the taxi ordinance allowing operation of a Dial-A-Ride system and Township Committee is expected to introduce the same ordinance next Monday. Both Traffic Safety Committees, Borough and Township, have to check out the proposed bus stops.

Suburban Transit says it will stop its New York City buses for local passengers as soon as it gets a letter from both Mayors. So.....

When will it start?

Perhaps as soon as the first week in April.

What does the bus "system" consist of?

One: A shuttle bus leaving the Jadwin Parking Lot at 15-minute intervals five mornings a week between 7:30 a.m. and 9 a.m., and again from 4:30 p.m. to 6 p.m. Park your car at Jadwin and take the shuttle to work for 25 cents.

Two: A loop route starting at 9 a.m. and continuing until 4:30 p.m. Two buses proceeding in opposite directions, will make this loop around town, traveling as far east as Shady Brook and a terminal near the sailing boathouse on Princeton-Kingston Road, and west as far as Bayard Lane. See map.

Three: Pick-up and discharge of in-town passengers by Suburban Transit's New York-bound buses (these buses can't stop for passengers west of Lover's Lane because of Suburban's agreement with Mercer Metro.) This will mean some 13-14 buses every work-day morning from 5:55 a.m. to 9 a.m., available for travel between the Princeton Shopping Center and the Central Business District (CBD).

Four: A Dial-A-Ride service, privately owned and operated, available from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m., six days a week, to carry passengers anywhere in Borough or Township.

Five: Mercer Metro's existing half-hour service from the Shopping Center to Trenton.

What will fares be?

For the rush-hour shuttle, $.25; for the loop route, $.25. For Suburban in-city stops, $.25 at present although Suburban warns it has petitioned the Public Utilities Commission for an increase to $.30. For Mercer Metro, the present fare is $.30 during rush-hours, $.15 between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., and after 6 p.m. Dial-A-Ride fare, probably no more than $.50.

How many days a week will the system be in operation?

Shuttle and loop will run five days a week; Dial-A-Ride, six days a week; Suburban Transit's New York

Council Enacts Controversial Zoning Revision In Vandeventer-Spring-Tulane Street District

What seemed to be a routine zoning ordinance amendment turned Borough Council's Tuesday night meeting into a skirmish between Council and one or two citizens, complete with charges and insinuations and a court stenographer.

The amendment—passed 5-0 with one abstention—changes the R-O-1 (Residence-Office) zone around Vandeventer, Spring and Tulane, into a Central Business and Residential-4 zone.

The idea, explained Mayor Robert W. Cawley, is chiefly to preserve the residential character of the neighborhood, but also to make conversions simpler.

The court reporter came with Timothy J. Sheehan, who told Council he represents "363 Nassau," the uncompleted building on the corner of Nassau and Markham, also in an R-O-1 zone but not the subject of Tuesday night's ordinance.

In a lengthy presentation, Mr. Sheehan said he objected to amending the zoning ordinance piecemeal. Changes like those in the amendment should be part of an overall, comprehensive plan, he said.

He also took Council to task for not having consulted with property owners in the zone to see how they felt about the change. He asked Council member Barbara Sigmund if she had talked to anyone and when she said she had, he asked the names of people she had talked with. She declined to identify anyone. Mayor Cawley, asked the same question, also declined to say with whom he had spoken.

To Mr. Sheehan's charge that Council wasn't entitled to act, piecemeal, Borough attorney Gordon Griffin replied that it was perfectly legal to treat problems as they arise. "You needn't deal with all zoning problems in all zones every time you amend the ordinance," he said.

Last Wednesday, at the Planning Board meeting, a large audience discussed this ordinance and two companion amendments at some length.

Neighbors in the Charlton area, a section also up for a zoning change that would preserve housing, spoke so persuasively that the Planning Board tabled its approval of that ordinance. Mr. Sheehan and other speakers suggested that fuller public participation was needed on all zoning changes.

In the vote, Thomas Cawley abstained. He is involved in litigation with Mr. Sheehan in another matter.

In a companion ordinance, Council proposes to change an R-O-2 zone to Central Business District so that retail stores will be allowed. The area in question is mostly parking lots, around the Playhouse and in the Chambers Street section.

Alfred Kahn, who manages several Princeton properties, told Council that "you're making all these changes because somebody has his hand in the pie."

Irate, Mayor Cawley demanded an explanation. So did Planning Board member William Walker.

Mr. Kahn said he didn't mean anybody personally, but he repeated, "There's a pie being divided up here. People in this town don't know what's going on. They know the average person can't do these things, but a big institution can. Probably the University owns the land—what kind of retail store is going there—the U. Store?"

"Our interest on Council is the public interest," Mayor Cawley snapped, "you're saying it isn't, and I don't like that."

Council passed the 1974 budget. A bookkeeping error that counted $72,000 twice, was erased through amendments that brought down the local tax rate to 95¢.

Another amendment by Councilman Martin P. Lombardo, which would have deleted $22,000 for revaluation of all Borough property, was defeated, 5-1. Mr. Lombardo said revaluation would strike hardest at lower-income property owners. "It's taking from the poor to help the rich," he said.

Plans Made for Art People Party on May 11, But Scene Will Shift to McCarter Theatre

Another Art People party? Yes!

For the fourth straight year, the Arts Council of Princeton will sponsor a spring Art People Party and the balloons and the folk-dancers, the leather-craft artists and the tricycle riders will all be back again on what everybody hopes will be a sunny day.

Saturday, May 11. This year, the Party will encircle McCarter Theatre, not only to give McCarter its own special salute, but to get some of the foot traffic off Nassau Street.

That Saturday night, McCarter will have the Royal Shakespeare Company on stage, so the Arts Council decided that a kind of Elizabethan theme would be a fine idea.

McCarter's own splendid banners may fly in the breeze from the front of the theatre, and maybe people will get into a "make your own banner" mood, so that McCarter will resemble a great castle surrounded by the bright gaiety of a tournament.

College Road, in front of McCarter, will be closed to traffic. A snow fence will stretch along the sidewalk in front of the College Road faculty apartments, not only to protect inhabitants but to provide a place to hang original paintings.

If you have a painting you'd like to see there, or if you're a candle-maker, weaver, jewelry artisan—any kind of good, honest craftsman, you're invited to participate.

Sign Up! The Arts Council wants you to demonstrate your craft for the crowds that will gather around you. It must be your own craft, too. ("We don't want people buying up fifty dollars worth of stuff in Flemington and selling it off," said one Arts Council member.)

To be eligible, you must live or work in Princeton or go to school here. You must register (free of charge) at the Princeton Chamber of Commerce office, 44 Nassau.

Incidentally, groups selling food—remember the fried chicken, spaghetti, sweet potato pie, lemonade?—must register this year. Hasn't been required in the past.

Come to Meeting. Next Monday evening, starting at 7:45 p.m., organizations that want to join the Art People Party are invited to the meeting room of the public library to start mapping it all out. Anne Reeves, president of the Arts Council, will preside.

All kinds of questions will undoubtedly be raised: how long a program will the mobile Street Theatre have? Will the various folk and square and modern dance groups need callers? How loud is your particular offering going to be? Where should we put the puppet show?

Will the Princeton Ballet Society do a May Pole dance again?

What will the Popsicle Players, new this year, present for the kids? Will Creative Theatre, Unlimited, have room enough to be unlimited?

Bluegrass bands, the (singing) Witherspooners and perhaps, like last year, a chance to learn square-dancing.

A parade? Of course! "We hope the Lord Mayor himself—that's Mayor Cawley, you know—will lead us like a Pied Piper, from Palmer Square to McCarter," Mrs. Reeves announces, consulting voluminous notes, Art and Business?

Last year's Art People Party caused an uproar in the Central Business District. Many businessmen, most vocally Thomas Brophy of the shoe store, vehemently protested the all-day Saturday invasion of Nassau and Witherspoon Streets. It wasn't "Princeton," some of them said, and besides it hurt business.

Informed of 1974 plans to move the party south to McCarter, Mr. Brophy was pleased.

"I congratulate the Arts Council on their decision," he said. "I'm sure I speak for all the merchants in saying that their consideration of us in this matter is greatly appreciated."

"McCarter is an excellent location. Whether having the Party there will affect the flow of traffic, or of business, only time will tell, of course."

"But it's nice to know that when there is a slight grievance, there are people who will listen."

"and there will be the usual parade of bikes and tricycles, all decorated. Maybe hoola hoops this year because the hoop was an Elizabethan game. The library will have special books for kids on life in Shakespeare's England, so that all the decorations can be authentic. Maybe there will be a prize for the decoration that's most 'historically significant.'"

A prize for the most historically significant tricycle!

Once again, there will be games run by the Recreation Department. Perhaps pic-buses and Mercer Metro's Trenton buses on their present seven-day schedule.

How frequently will buses run? (How long do I have to stand at a bus-stop?)
Shuttle bus will leave Jadwin's parking lot every 15 minutes. The exact schedule for the loop buses hasn't been worked out. Because there will be two buses traveling in opposite directions, scheduling is tricky. Possibly a bus would be along every half hour.
Will we get time-tables? Yes, in time.
How big are these buses? The shuttle and the two loop buses—both to be furnished by Suburban Transit—hold 36 passengers. They aren't Suburban's New York behemoths.
What is Dial-A-Ride? Dial the number and a dispatcher will radio the driver of the 10-passenger mini-bus, maxi-cab, telling him where to pick you up and where you want to go. The driver may already have more than one fare when he gets your message, and when you climb into the Mercedes bus, you may find four or five other people with destinations of their own.
Dial-A-Ride is said to fill the

Why Use Shuttle?
If you work in Princeton and you can park all day for 60 cents, why take the proposed new Jadwin-to-Nassau shuttle at 25 cents each way just to save a dime?
Because....
In the public library parking lot, as an example, most of the 95 all-day slots are taken by as early as 8:15. If you drive in to town for a 9 o'clock job, you have to leave home early, get to town almost an hour before work and just kill time.
Park at Jadwin, and all-day parking for your car will be free. Using the shuttle five days a week will save you 50 cents a week, $2 a month in parking fees. And if you forget your glasses and have to get back to your car, the loop bus will carry you back to Jadwin any time during the day.

gap between regular taxi service and the loop bus. In Princeton, it will be operated by Paul and Ellen Draper, 41 Jefferson Road.

The Time is Now. "It's important for the Princeton community to get this going while we have a gas crisis," Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley said this week.

Public transportation—which Princeton has never had—has been viewed as an increasingly desperate need by many public officials in recent years, and the gas shortage has underscored this need.

The interlocking, inter-looping bus system described above has been worked on, hammered out, studied, altered over three full years, from March, 1971, when Borough and Township governing bodies set up a Joint Committee on Public Transportation. The chairman of the Committee is William Starr.

The committee started out with several objectives. Its members realized, first of all, that Princeton has low-income families and elderly people who don't have cars and who find it difficult to get to stores, to the doctor or to the hospital.

Fewer Parking Tickets. Also, CBD merchants have been increasingly restive about growing traffic congestion and angry out-of-town customers who get the Borough's expensive $4 parking tickets and vow never to shop here again. Townspeople, on their part, are annoyed at people who drive in to Princeton to work and take up scarce parking spaces on a 9-5 schedule.

A bus system like this also might free the shackles from the car-pooling mother. At present, of course, the loop route doesn't operate on weekends, but Mr. Starr's committee points out that demand might change this, in time.

How about the financing? The shuttle bus from Jadwin is expected to produce a profit of $1,512 for the nine-month period between April 1 and January 1, 1975, with the $.25 fare. This shuttle will be hired from Suburban.

The all-day loop will be a deficit operation, estimated to cost $32,000 for that nine-month period, again based on a $.25 ride. Originally, the Transportation Committee planned to use Mercer Metro buses, which everyone thought would be available this spring.

Buses on Order. However, these buses are not yet available. Mercer Metro expects to get them by January 1 through an Urban Mass Transit Authority grant for which tentative approval has been given. Mercer Metro buses are those operated by the Mercer County Improvement Authority, and will be cheaper than the loop ones the Transportation Committee plans to hire from Suburban Transit.

The director of operations for Mercer Metro says that if Princeton's loop route is actually used and found to be successful, Mercer Metro will take it over and operate it without charge to the community (that doesn't mean free fares, of course). The director added that "success" doesn't mean the route has to operate in the black, but only that it be used. The agreement with Suburban, Mr. Staff says, can be terminated on five days' notice without penalty, if Mercer does take over the loop route.

Dial-A-Ride may be regarded by Princeton's taxi drivers as a threat to business, although Borough officials say the drivers were asked almost two years ago to set up such a system, and declined to do so.

"Dial-A-Ride won't cut into the life-blood of the taxi," thinks Borough Council member Barbara Sigmund, "it will free taxis for door-to-door service."

A meeting will be held this week with the taxi drivers, Mayor Cawley said. A meeting has also been scheduled with Chamber of Commerce members, because of the impact of the bus system on customers, and on employees who drive here to work.

A so-called "negative incentive," will involve cutting back on the number of long-term (ten-hour) parking meters in the Borough. "Negative incentive" means if it's that tough to find an all-day parking place, you'll park at Jadwin and take the shuttle to work.

nickering may be allowed under the trees of the Seminary campus. And will the magnolias across University Place be in bloom?

Staging for the Art People party—that means, where do we put the puppet show, and where the jewelry-maker?—will be done by Richard Poole, John Yeoman and Leslie Vivian. Scheduling will be worked out by Jeremiah Ford, Nancy O'Connor and Philetus Holt.

Elizabeth Monath of the Princeton Art Association will prepare the exhibits. Carolyn Moseley will be in charge of folk music. Betty Ruth Curtiss will assemble the craftsmen. Barbara Russo will line up a group of young photographers to show young and old how it's done.

Workshops, demonstrations, banners and that parade, will be planned and scheduled by Rick Endersby, Miles Dumont, Mrs. Reeves and a group of high school and Princeton University students. Joan V. Gallos is in charge of publicity, assisted by Rick Hesel and Lonni Sue Johnson.

New Municipal Budgeting Procedure Attacked by Staples— Asserts Library Employees Were Denied Hourly Raise of 5¢

The first—or anyway the most explosive—casualty of the new municipal budgeting process seems to be the public library, and librarian Robert Staples threw the book at Township Committee Monday night when the budget came up for public hearing.

"My board of trustees and I met all the deadlines, although this is a very difficult procedure to follow," Mr. Staples began, in a voice shaking with anger. "We met with Borough and Township administrators and your finance people. We heard no more until January when the budget was given to us as an accomplished fact. When I tried to communicate, and to question the figures—and I made a very vocal appeal—it was like talking to a cinderblock wall."

"We had no 'say' on salaries for our staff. They were dictated to us. When I asked for increases for part-time employees, I was told 'This is not considered necessary'."

Mr. Staples told Committee he wanted to raise the hourly pay of pages from $1.70 to $1.75 and of other part-time workers from $2.30 to $2.35. He asked for a salary increase for a bookkeeper in what he called "a prime job" but met, he said, "a blank wall."

Can't Get Through. "Problems in communication" was a recurring phrase in the exchange between Mr. Staples and Committee. Apparently officials thought "part-time" employees were only transient summer help. But Mr. Staples explained that his staff has many "permanent part-time" workers.

Pages, for example, work after school. He said some of them, high school seniors, have been working at the library since eighth-grade. Other "permanent part-time" employees are women with children, who cannot put in a full day but who have been with the library for many years.

"These people deserve some token of thanks, even if it's only a nickel or a dime," he declared.

Under the new budgeting rules, explained Committeeman Abbot Low Moffat, if the heads of joint Borough-Township agencies aren't satisfied with their budgets, they are supposed to submit a written memo to Borough Council and Township Committee.

"But we never had this memo from the library," Mr. Moffat said.

"I never put it in writing because I never got a final figure until mid-January," Mr. Staples retorted. "When I got one figure, I told Borough Administrator Robert Mooney it was a very tight budget, and he said don't worry, it's not the final figure. Then when I got the final figure—it was less!"

Budget Delay Charged. The Township's administrator, Joseph R. Nini, told Committee that "Borough Hall didn't release its budgets as soon as it should have—to allow agencies time." Mr. Nini added that he took some of the responsibility himself, particularly in the confusion about "part-time" definitions. "We need more detail from all the joint agencies," he commented.

Mayor Jay Bleiman said he told the library board in February that protests had to be made in writing. He also observed that money in the library's budget is for Mr. Staples to allocate as he sees fit, although the mayor conceded some doubt about the legality of changing line-items.

"How much, in dollars, would these salary increases be?" the mayor asked.

Mr. Staples said about $2,000. When Mr. Moffat pointed out that state aid for the library was $1,000 more than expected, leaving Mr.

Staples only $1,000 to allocate the librarian replied that if he used state aid money, this would give him no 1974 budget base for next year's salaries.

Salary Control Lacking. Another irritation, Mr. Staples said, is that the library doesn't set its own salary scales. He said he discussed with Gerard Miller, Mr. Nini's associate who handles finance, each individual library salary. There seemed to be confusion here over percentages: was Mr. Staples held to seven percent in salary increases for his staff? He thought so, but according to Mr. Nini, the Township never said seven percent was an absolute ceiling.

After the smoke had cleared somewhat, the Township Engineer, Joseph Hodak, said he was right there on Mr. Staples' side:

"After I got salary notices for my department," Mr. Hodak said, "I wrote Township Committee my protest. That was mid-February. I haven't had a reply yet. The trouble in communication you talk about is all in one direction."

formal name, has organized to press for low and moderate-income housing on the Forrestal site. "The housing elements of the Forrestal Center should reflect at the very least the housing requirements of the people who will be employed there," said J. Rees Troothman, a graduate student.

The University's current plans for Forrestal call for 600 condominium units, priced at an average of $60,000 apiece. The Forrestal Center at full completion of its first phase would employ about 5,000 persons.

According to the ordinance enacted Monday, the University must allot at least 50 percent of the project to office, research, industrial or educational uses. Eight dwelling units are allowed on each acre of residential land, but for every eight units, one other acre must be set aside for open space.

University planners probably will submit their PMUD concept plan to Plainsboro sometime this spring.

ORDINANCE PASSED

For University Development. The Plainsboro Township Committee Monday approved adoption of a Planned Multiple-Use Development (PMUD) zoning ordinance for the first phase of Princeton University's proposed 1,600-acre Forrestal Center development on Route 1.

The ordinance allows the University to file a concept plan for the first phase of the project, which would designate siting of roads, land uses and densities. The first phase plans call for partial development of the research-office facilities, residential areas and commercial uses the University has projected for the land. Princeton announced its overall plans last fall, after it had quietly doubled the amount of land it controlled in the vicinity of the present James V. Forrestal Research Campus.

At the same time Monday night, the University received indications that the Forrestal development would not proceed unchecked. A representative of the Middlesex County Planning Board indicated that his agency was concerned with the scale of the development. "We're concerned with size in terms of jobs and people," said George M. Ververides, assistant planning director for the County.

Additionally, the Township Committee passed a one-year moratorium against all new construction in Plainsboro. The exceptions are those tracts already subject of filed subdivision plans. One such exception is a 228-acre parcel of the Forrestal Center known as the Phipps tract. Part of that has already been sold by the University to the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, which expects to begin construction of a headquarters building this spring.

The moratorium, which will enable Plainsboro to review its master plans in light of a raft of development proposals that have been submitted, may or may not have a serious impact on the rest of the University development.

Sewage Problems. Princeton's development already faces delays due to the current lack of sewage facilities in Plainsboro. Plans for the Stony Brook Regional Sewer Authority have been delayed several years at least.

One other voice of concern was directed this week toward the Forrestal Center. A group of Princetonians, with no cluding Township Mayor Jay Bleiman, have been added to the original three in the suit filed by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hosford, 430 Terhune, to stop construction of the proposed Institute for Defense Analyses building on Terhune Road.

The other two new defendants are IDA itself and W. Joseph Shinn, in his capacity as Township building inspector. The suit already names the Princeton Regional Planning Board, the Thanet Corporation (owner of the land) and Page Associates, the New York firm that will own the building and lease it to IDA.

Mayor Bleiman is a retired lieutenant colonel in the Army. Theodore Breeland, attorney for the Hosfords, says the mayor should have disqualified himself in every instance in which the IDA matter came before him because he draws retirement pay from the Department of Defense, of which the National Security Agency is a part. IDA does work on contract for NSA.

Mr. Vreeland charges that IDA sent Thanet money to install improvements on the four Thanet lots that IDA won't be using for its own building. IDA, in essence, put up the completion bond, and the mortgage Thanet gave will remain until the money has been repaid and the improvements done to the satisfaction of the Township.

Exterior Decoration

If your grass
is bright and green,
It means St. Patrick's
On the scene

The cold weather that arrived at mid-week wasn't any help to greener grass. By the time St. Pat's Day arrives, however, those sub-freezing, sub-normal readings will be a part of the past.

Showers due to visit us intermittently in the next few days will, on the other hand, make for greener lawns. March will continue to tease, as always, but the occasionally milder temperatures are proof along with the calendar that this Thursday, winter begins its final week.

Mr. Shinn is named because he granted Page the building permit.

RACE WIDENING

In Fifth District, Interest among both Democrats and Republicans in the Fifth Congressional District has quickened since last week's formal announcement by Representative Peter H.B. Frelinghuysen that he would retire after 11 terms as the Republican incumbent. Two Princeton area residents have indicated they may run.

One definite candidate is Frederick M. Bohen, of 128 FitzRandolph Road, a Democrat who ran against Mr. Frelinghuysen two years ago. He already has competition for the nomination this year, including that of former Congressman Paul J. Krebs of Livingston, who announced this week. Mr. Krebs was in Congress from 1965-'66.

The other is Dr. Oscar Sussman, of Route 206, Rocky Hill, a veterinarian and the controversial state health inspector who last year ordered the closing of unclean kitchen facilities at several state institutions.

"Some of my friends have asked me to run," Dr. Sussman was quoted as saying. "I'm considering it. I'd let the public know what the hell's going on behind the scenes in government."

WOMAN HITS POLE

Charged with Drunken Driving. A Township resident has been charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol Sunday morning after her car struck a pole on Cherry Valley Road not far from Hillside Avenue. The pole was split in half.

Taken by the First Aid Squad to Princeton Medical Center, where she received nine sutures for three facial lacerations, was Mrs. Carole Pettit, 52, of Ridgeview Road. She was charged by Ptl. Mario Musso with drunken driving and faces a court appearance May 1.

The entire front end of her car was damaged. Police said that Mrs. Pettit was alone in the 8:45 a.m. accident.

Whiplash Injury. Mary Ruth Williams, 22, 108 Stockton Street, was treated at the Medical Center for a whiplash injury which she received Friday afternoon in an accident on Stockton near Campbellton.

She was a passenger in a car operated by Robert S. Williams Jr., 29, of Newburgh, N.Y. Their car had stopped to make a left turn into a driveway when it was rammed from behind by a tractor trailer cab, hauling another cab. The driver, Ernest R. Stover, 32, of Tullyton was charged with careless driving by Ptl. William Hunter.

Cyclist Struck. An 11-year old bicyclist, Gene Lewin, 7 Gordon Way, sustained minor injuries—knee abrasion and scratched nose—when he was struck by a car Thursday as he attempted to cross Nassau Street near Harriet Drive. He was treated at the scene by the First Aid Squad.

There were no charges against the driver, Patsy L. Hendrix, 23, of Cranbury. Ptl. Peter Hanley said that the youth was very upset after the incident and cried that it was "all my fault and a stupid thing to do."

Pedestrian Mishap. A Princeton Junction resident, Virginia T. Van Kirk, 66, of Cranbury Road, suffered minor contusions when she was struck late Thursday afternoon crossing Witherspoon Street at Nassau.

She was two-thirds through the crosswalk when she was knocked to the ground by a car driven by Juan Ochoa, 25, of Hightstown. The accident was witnessed by Ptl. Ronald Holliday, standing on the corner. He helped the victim up and called a patrol car for aid.

There were no charges by the investigating officer, Sgt. Robert Anderson.

THEFT REPORT

Stereo, Calculator, Gas Taken. Among items reported stolen last week by Princeton police was a four-channel stereo tape deck valued at $115.35.

The owner, Peter Kerney, 17, 590 Great Road, told police he had parked his car Sunday next to the Princeton Day School skating rink. When he returned an hour later, someone had pried open a front vent window and removed the tape deck.

Steve Maher of Holder Hall, Princeton University, lost a $300 pocket calculator from a table in a lounge study in Holder. He had left it at 12:05 a.m. Saturday morning and he reported it missing at 10 a.m.

Someone siphoned approximately 250 gallons of gas last week from an underground tank at Callahan Motors on Route 206. The gas was valued at $130.

Police said the tank was located on the southwest corner of the building facing Cherry Valley Road. The pumps were locked but the cap to the underground tank was not, police added.

Several cases of liquor, valued at several hundred dollars, were stolen last week from a liquor storage room at the Quadrangle Club on Prospect Avenue.

The door to the storage room had been forced open, police said. Det. Timothy Huizing is investigating.

A quart of varnish, a can of spray paint, two paint brushes and a basketball with a combined value of $30 were reported stolen last week by Jack Roberts, assistant recreation director, from Rooms 210 and 211 Valley Road School.

The doors were locked but many people had keys, Mr. Roberts told Township police. There were no signs of forced entry.

Earlier this year, the Princeton Recreation Department had moved its

$19 Friday when two men removed her wallet from her pocketbook.

Police said that two young men walked into the office around 5:30 and one asked to use the rest room. While the receptionist's attention was diverted, the other reached in and took her wallet. Police identified the victim as Beverly Radice.

WANT A STUDENT?

As Live-in "Family." If you'd like a Princeton University student as a live-in,
rent-free family helper, you're invited to an Open House to be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the 1917 Room of Upper Madison Hall.

The building is located on Nassau Street across from Chambers Street, in the entry marked "Student Housing Office." Additional information may be obtained by calling Libby Ranney, 452-3561.

The Office is now making plans for the academic year 1974-75. In the past 18 months, the Office has found housing for about 40 students who earn room and board in the home as baby-sitters, housesitters, yard workers, cooks,
chauffeurs and general handy persons. Students are both graduate and undergraduate.
Some are married.

At the Open House on Monday, families who are interested will have a chance to ask questions of students who are considering this arrangement for next year, and to talk with families and students already participating in the "Student-Family Registry."

SPRING'S HEADING FOR THE RIVER'S EDGE: Among the highlights of the "St. Patrick's Preview of Spring Fashions" to be presented by the River's Edge, Lambertville, this Friday are (l. to r.): a Dior design recreated in apricot rib-knit by My Lady of New Hope; a Youth Guild pants suit with black-and-brown stripes by The Mennequin of Flemington; one of the famous Irish spring capes by Jimmy Hourihan of Dublin, over Cyril Cullen's fringe-sleeve cotton-linen dress, both from The Gaelic Shop of New Hope; Stephen Burrows dramatic black evening dress (Mennequin) and designer Shirley Clinton's emerald green caftan with white seed pearls (My Lady of New Hope). The dinner show is at 9, the luncheon show at 1, with no extra charge for either, but table reservations are required.

STREAKERS STRIKE
Goldfish. Anyone? Streaking, the current campus fad that needs no definition and that has become so pervasive that the National Safety Council has actually issued a bulletin of safety tips for streakers—wear sneakers, bright hats, keep eyes peeled for cars, etc.—streaking finally arrived on the Princeton University campus last Friday night.
A group of 75 undergraduates, all male, gathered in a dormitory room in Cuyler Hall to begin their mass flight of nudity. From a second floor room they called Streaker Central, they raced through the Cuyler Courtyard, up campus to Holder courtyard, to the Nassau Hall steps, and then into, yes into, Firestone Library, McCosh 10, the Pub, Whig Hall, and finally Dillon Pool, where a capacity crowd was gathered to view the Eastern Collegiate swimming championships.

"It was only a half hour, but what a half hour! This has to be the highlight of my Princeton career," said one fully clothed onlooker. The streakers themselves were equally enthusiastic about their adventure. "It's the biggest thing that's ever happened," said Douglas Worley, a sophomore who was given credit for organizing the streak.

"We nailed down that Ivy League title tonight," Mr. Worley told a student reporter. By taking the number of streakers and multiplying that by the yards each ran, Mr. Worley calculated that Princeton streaked 100,000 man-yards. "That beats Yale by at least 60,000," he said. "Yes, we've got the record."
Royce N. Flippin, Princeton's athletic director and a man not unfamiliar with competition against Yale, said "we did some pretty crazy things in my day." He added facetiously: "Worley's only a sophomore; we could be a big power for years to come."

Good Humor. In short, the University generally reacted in good humor to this latest collegiate diversion. Reaction in town, however, was somewhat cooler, as indicated in the box on this page.
Friday night's episode even produced a kind of streaking saga, composed by Andrew M. Pollack, a Daily Princetonian editor who was one of the streakers. Entitled "Paper Streaker: Confessions of a mild-mannered 'Prince' editor," the column said in part:

"There was no way in the world I was going to go into the library. It was light in there and besides, the library is a notorious hangout for 'Prince' reporters on Friday night. However, as the rest of my companions streaked inside, I realized one thing. At least in there I looked the same as 75 others. Standing naked all alone outside I looked like a freezing idiot."
Mr. Pollack continued: "We streaked to the reserve room and then the reference room. One old lady nearly had a stroke when she saw us. She hadn't had so much action in 30 years. Neither had the door guard, although his action was of a different sort. Desperately he clicked and clicked on his little clicker, trying to get the correct head count as the savage horde

Streakers Beware
"We're not going to set up traps; we're not seeking out streakers...but we are not going to condone nudity on Nassau Street or any other public place in Princeton. One is taking a very definite risk in streaking," warned Chief Michael Carnevale Tuesday.
Chief Carnevale said that if a streaker strayed near a police officer, he would be apprehended and charged with open lewdness—a misdemeanor in New Jersey.
"In a sense," commented Chief Carnevale, "we're giving a lot of sick people a license to parade around in the nude. I'm not a prude, but I don't think all people in our society are ready for mass nudity. A lot of people are offended by it."

SUMMER OF '74

It's the summer you spend in Switzerland... the summer you learn to speak German, or French, or Italian, or Spanish... the summer you climb the Alps (if you're up for that), or ski the glacier slopes (in July!). It's a full 6 weeks with other American and European students. The place is Wengen, Switzerland. The cost is $590 (for meals, tuition, and lodging).
The time to enroll is NOW!

Always Prepared. "We all dashed into the Pub where we grabbed free beers. On the way in someone jokingly asked for our IDs. One guy I knew, however, came ready for just such an emergency. He had tucked his U-Store card under his hat. The ideal boyscout: traveling light but always prepared."

"...We streaked to Dillon Pool for the Easterns. On the way I was joined by a friend of mine, who came up fully clothed and jogged alongside me...As we ran he said to me with utter incredulity, 'Pollack, you? You don't even have a good body.' It does the job, I thought to myself."

"The only people more crazy than the streakers were the people who turned out to see us. It was amazing how fast the news spread... It was a grand testimony to the Princeton social scene."

MALL PLANS SUBMITTED

To Hopewell Township. Preliminary plans for a proposed 1.2 million square foot regional shopping mall off the Pennington Circle on Route 31 have been submitted to the Hopewell Township Planning Board. The Board will schedule a public hearing for a site plan review sometime in April.

According to the plans submitted by the Rouse Company of Columbia, Maryland, the initial development of the mall would include construction of a 750,000 square foot, two-story, enclosed mall housing 100 shops and two department stores—Strawbridge and Clothier and Sears. The current timetable calls for completion of this phase by spring, 1976.

The full development of the project, scheduled for 1984, would include four large department stores and about 200 smaller shops. Officials of Rouse said they had no plans to build supermarkets, office buildings or other free-standing buildings on the site.

Planning Board Chairman William Kampfer said Rouse is applying for a "special exception" use to zone a substantial portion of the 190-acre site for "regional shopping center use." The

Contest Open to Amateur Photographers

Photographers of all ages, sizes and degrees of proficiency are invited to enter the photo contest sponsored by the camera department of the Princeton University Store. Deadline: 5:30 p.m. Friday, March 29. Entries must be in the camera department by that time.

Prizes will go to the picture that best tells a story. Maybe it's your child's first pet. Or your club's bazaar, or an exciting moment in sports. Perhaps an ecology problem that has caught your eye, or news about your school.

The first prize is $100 worth of equipment or supplies from the camera department. Second and third prizes are $50 and $25 worth of equipment or supplies. Incidentally, this refers to manufacturers' list prices; no discounts will be applicable.

zoning ordinances require that such a special exception be reviewed by the Township Planning and Zoning boards and by Township Committee.

A smaller portion of the project, about 22 acres, would remain under regular Business 2 zoning and would not be subject to mall zoning requirements.

Mr. Kampfer said the plans will be reviewed thoroughly by the Planning Board, Township engineer and attorney.

TEENAGER CHARGED

With Marijuana Possession. A Hopewell teenager has been charged with possession of less than 25 grams of marijuana by Township police, following a routine check of her car Thursday on Lawrenceville Road.

Carol L. Nevius, 18, 91 Columbia Avenue, was subsequently released in her own recognizance after her arrest to await a court hearing May 1. The arresting officer, Ptl. Mario Musso reported that when Miss Nevius opened the glove compartment to get her registration, he noticed a film canister which he said is used sometimes to store marijuana.

When he went around to the other side of the car to check the identification of a passenger, Ptl. Musso reported, the passenger

You may submit as many as three prints, but no more. Pictures may be black and white, color prints or slides. The minimum size, if you're submitting a print, is 5x7 and the maximum size is 11x14. Print your name, address and telephone number on the back of each entry. There must be no identification on the face of the print or on the mount.

Winning pictures will be hung for display on the main level (book department) of the University Store starting April 8. Judges are Princeton photographer Orren Jack Turner, Princeton artist Joanne Augustine, and Township Mayor Jay Bleiman.

The contest is sponsored only by the Princeton University Store. No camera manufacturer is involved.

kicked over an open bottle of beer. As he leaned down to set the bottle upright, he continued, he observed a seed on the floor, allegedly marijuana. A check of the film canister revealed an alleged marijuana residue, he said. No charges were made against the passenger.

Trenton Pair Charged. Earlier in the week, Ptl. Musso and Ptl. Harry Morton, arrested Roberta M. Kelly, 19, and Joseph R. Pasun, 18, both of Trenton, and charged them with possession of under 25 grams of marijuana. Court date is April 3.

According to the officers, the two were in a car parked on the shoulder of Mercer

Road as if it were disabled. As they approached the car, Pasun, they said, opened the door and they observed a dark colored substance on the car's carpeting which resembled marijuana. They also saw a partially burned seed which they believed to be a marijuana seed.

A further check produced a small quantity of the drug under the driver's seat and a pipe. The officers further reported obtaining some marijuana and a pipe from Miss Kelly.

THREE ARE FINED
For Careless Driving. Three Princeton area residents were fined $20 each Monday in Borough Court for careless driving.

Fined by Judge Philip Carchman were Joseph R. Wilson, 17, 509 Village Road W., Princeton Junction; Terri J. Johnson, 18, Belle Mead; and Douglas H. Miller, 18, 243 Russell Road.

Robertson Nathan, 18, 32 Witherspoon Lane, and J. Thomas James, 45 Vandeventer Avenue, were fined $35 and $20 for tampering with a motor vehicle. A U-turn violation cost John C. Schenck, 33, 48 Wilton Street, $25, while Juan G. Yaltes, 26, 227A Marshall Street, paid $20 for speeding.

In Township court last week, Michael R. Seward, 18, Willow Road, Belle Mead, was fined $60 and had his license revoked for six months for having no insurance. He also paid $20 for no registration in possession.

Bertha V. Kross of Trenton was fined $110 and placed on six months probation for shoplifting in Bamberger's in the Princeton Shopping Center.

SUITCASE IS STOLEN
Two Men Are Charged. Borough police have charged two men with the theft

Saturday of a suitcase owned by a Hopewell woman who was a guest at the Nassau Inn. Charged with larceny are Bruce A. Renaud, 20, of East Windsor, and Dennis Picott, 19, of Hightstown. Later released, they are scheduled to appear in Township Court on April 17.

The two were seen by East

AN EARLY SPRING

At Princeton Antiques Show. The subtle pleasures of a shaded suburban garden in the early spring have inspired landscape architect Herbert Sensi of Kale's Nursery and Landscape Service to create a familiar garden exhibit for the Princeton Antiques Show, scheduled for March 21-23. It will be held at Princeton Day School, under sponsorship of the Wellesley Club of Central New Jersey.

The exhibit will feature a small garden pool on two levels, joined by a small waterfall in a cut stone patio, surrounded by retaining walls and weathered fencing. Spring bulbs of all sorts will cluster beneath a copse of birch trees and flowering dogwood.

Surrounding the garden will be 33 dealer exhibits, showing fine antiques of every description, including quilts, folk art, furniture, paintings, paperweights, toys, silver, books, rugs, oriental antiques and whaling artifacts, just to name a few. Of particular interest to the younger collector is the fact that many items shown are very modestly priced, affording a fine opportunity for the foresighted gift-shopper.

Show hours are noon to 10 p.m. Thursday and Friday, March 21 and 22, noon to 5 Saturday. A special Cocktail Preview is scheduled for Wednesday evening, March 20, from 6 to 9. General admission to the show is $2 per adult at the door, and $1.50 by SECRETARY NAMED For West Windsor Schools. Charles H. Knipple has been appointed secretary of the school board and business administrator for the West Windsor-Plainsboro Regional School District.

Mr. Knipple has held the positions of administrative principal and acting business administrator for Boontown Township, and has been both superintendent and business advisor of the Egg Harbor Township public schools. He taught business education for twelve years and was for six years a municipal research analyst with Dun and Bradstreet, Inc.

CLEANERS ENTERED Suede Clothing Taken. A large amount of clothing apparel, most of it suede, was stolen last week from University Cleaners, 30 Moore Street.

Police report that the thieves forced open a rear wooden sliding door to enter the building between 6:15 p.m. Tuesday and 7:30 Wednesday morning. Chief Michael Carnevale said the police are still waiting for an inventory and value of the stolen clothing from the owner.

Police also report the entering last Wednesday morning of a home at 2 Library Place.

Chief Carnevale said that a basement window was forced open and once inside, the intruder smashed four barrels of china and cut crystal that had been stored in the cellar. The value of the broken articles is not known by the police, who identified their owner as Miss Mary Nicholson.

BIRTH LIST

Twenty-Seven Are Born. The births of 10 girls and 17 boys, including a set of twins, were reported last week by the Princeton Medical Center.

STAFF CHANGES MADE

At Medical Center, Dr. William F. Besser, 526 Terhune Road, has been named president of the medical and dental staff at The Medical Center at Princeton. An attending physician at The Medical Center since 1963, Dr. Besser succeeds Dr. Marvin R. Blumenthal—an internist—as staff president.

Dr. Besser is a graduate of Pennsylvania State College and the University of Pennsylvania Medical School. He interned at Einstein Medical Center, Northern Division, Philadelphia, where he also served a three-year residency in obstetrics and gynecology. He has been a diplomate of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology since 1963.

Dr. Besser will be assisted by Dr. Thomas L. Evans, 266 Shady Brook Lane, as staff vice president, and Dr. Leonard D. Policoff, 70 Balsam Lane, as staff secretary-treasurer. Dr. Evans, a diplomate of the American Board of Pediatrics, has served The Medical Center as an attending physician since 1959.

Dr. Policoff became a member of The Medical Center's staff as an attending physician in 1971. He is chairman of the department of rehabilitation medicine and is medical director of the Merwick Rehabilitation and Extended Care Unit at the center. He is board certified in internal medicine as well as in physical medicine and rehabilitation medicine.

Named members of the staff's executive committee are: Drs. Henry J. Powsner, Harvey Rothberg, Edwin D. Rogers, John J. White, and Dr. Blumenthal.

Measles Shot?

This Friday in Princeton's public schools, children between the ages of 6 and 12 will receive measles shots to protect them in the current rash of measles cases—not yet an epidemic in Mercer County, but serious enough to warrant attention.

However, it's the teen agers between 14 and 18 that Borough and Township Board of Health members are worried about: the older the victim, the more severe the case. Parents of teens are urged to find out from their doctors whether the teen-ager had a measles shot in younger years. If not, the inoculation should be given now.

clot. The factor which controls the clotting is missing from their blood. "There is no cure for this disease," said Mr. Rydell.

"Without sufficient funds, hemophilia research is at a standstill," said Mr. Rydell. "I'm hopeful that everyone will give generously when a volunteer knocks at their door. Their contributions may help provide hemophiliacs with freedom from the pain and crippling of the disease."

BOOK ARTIST SPEAKER

At Library. Janina Domanska, Caldecott honor book artist, will talk about children, books and illustrations next Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 at the children's department of the Princeton Public Library.

Mrs. Domanska has illustrated more than 45 children's books. Parents and their children 6 and older are invited to register at the children's desk.

FERTILIZER SALE SET

By West Windsor Lions. The West Windsor Lions Club is conducting its annual fertilizer sale.

Three types are available this year: a 10-6-4 mixture which is 50 per cent organic; a "weed and feed" mixture and a 100 per cent organic type which is being offered for the first time.

All three will be sold at normal prices and will be available at the Dey barn on Hightstown Road on Saturday, March 30. For each ten bags ordered, the Club will include one free bag. Orders may be placed through Sal Fascetta, 799-2080, or Bernt Midland, 799-1642.

Proceeds will be used primarily to aid children's and eye-and-sight programs. Last year, the club donated a special cataract machine to Princeton Medical Center.

HUN DANCE PLANNED

For Scholarship Benefit. Plans are under way for the eighth Annual Hun Dinner Dance for the benefit of the Hun Scholarship Fund. The Dance will be held at the Hun School on Saturday, April 27, at 8.

The committee for this annual benefit includes Mrs. Paul H. Plough, Jr., and Mrs. John M. Reeder, Co-with many of the more than 500 Common Cause members in the immediate Princeton area.

Princeton area employers, including Princeton University and RCA, are being asked to mail their employees a copy of the Internal Revenue Service information sheet which reminds taxpayers they can, at no additional cost to themselves, designate one dollar of their tax to the public financing of Presidential elections. If the taxpayer did not earmark a dollar last year, two dollars can be set aside this year. A husband and wife can designate four dollars for the two-year period.

This check-off provision, established by law in 1971 to finance a non-partisan Presidential Election Campaign Fund starting in 1976, was not widely publicized and last year many taxpayers did not take advantage of the provision, according to the citizens' lobby. As a result of a Common Cause lawsuit, the Internal Revenue Service is giving the check-off a prominent spot on this year's 1040 and 1040A tax forms.

Mr. Alpert will also head local Common Cause efforts to persuade Representative Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen to add his name to the list of congressmen who have signed the "Statement of Principles on Campaign Reform" now being circulated in the House of Representatives.

Stronger Approach. On the state level, Mr. Alpert will coordinate the efforts of local Common Cause members who urge a stronger approach to campaign financing reform in New Jersey than that proposed by Governor Byrne on February 11.

Common Cause has charged that the Byrne bill "will do virtually nothing to reduce the influence of big money in New Jersey politics." As an example, the bill contains no provisions for the reform of funding primary elections.

HEMOPHILIA DRIVE SET

Begins Saturday. More than 2,500 volunteers throughout Mercer County will begin a concerted effort Saturday to raise funds for the National Hemophilia Foundation by calling on their neighbors for contributions.

According to Bobby Rydell, Campaign Chairman for the 1974 Hemophilia drive, "these volunteers will be marching door-to-door for the next several weeks in search of funds to support medical research. It's the most significant phase of our campaign."

Hemophilia is a blood disease characterized by the inability of a victim's blood to

Correction

In describing a three-car accident on Rosedale Road in last week's issue, Town Topics reported—on information supplied by Township police—that one of the drivers, Cynthia A. Bannister of Hopewell was issued a summons for careless driving and Miss Hunter was not involved.

12 "Jaws," Novel Bringing $1,000 Advance, Grossed $1.25 Million Before First Copy Was Printed

On the wall behind him, the silver-gray shark hovered on the starkly contrasted blue canvas. As long as Peter Benchley sat there, the shark's eye appeared just over his left shoulder, its stare aimed not just at him but at the entire room. The phone rang. Mr. Benchley excused himself, and got up to answer it.

"Hi, Paul, what have you heard from Paramount?"

"Really? You had lunch with Woody yesterday? What did he think?"

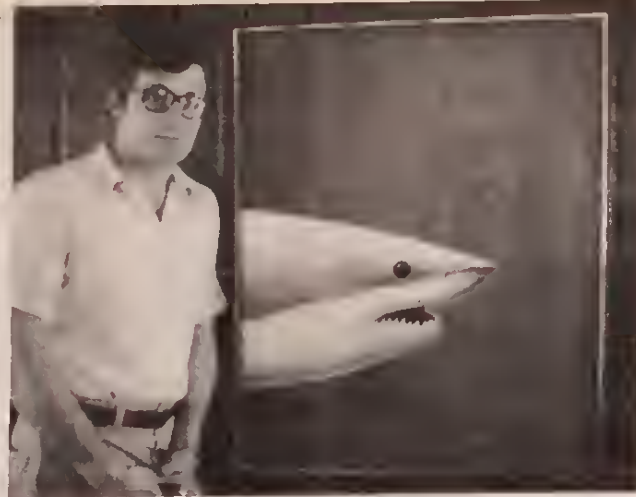

"Great. No, I'm playing squash at 3 this afternoon. I've got a tennis match Monday. We take off for Colorado on Wednesday. Should we try to work tomorrow?"

Mr. Benchley finished the conversation and turned to the visitor in his home at 9 Birch Avenue, Pennington. "That was Paul Zimmerman, Newsweek's movie editor. He and I are writing a screenplay for a movie on television game shows. We're not sure how well it will do but Paul had lunch with Woody Allen yesterday and he thinks it has possibilities."

Mr. Benchley lit a cigaret and returned to his chair, just beneath the shark's silent stare.

Ever since he completed his first novel, "Jaws," Peter Benchley's life has not been quite the same.

Until a year ago he was a little known, though moderately successful, figure in journalism. He had worked as an obituary writer and police reporter for the Washington Post; as the television editor of Newsweek magazine; as a minor speechwriter and letter-answerer for President Johnson; and as a freelance writer and television commentator. For a while he was "Peter Benchley at Large" on WPIX. He was known better as the son of

WRITER AND FRIEND: For Pennington author Peter Benchley, the idea of using a 20-foot, great white shark as a protagonist in his first novel proved to be a major publishing success. The movie version of "Jaws" is currently being filmed by Universal. The book made The New York Times' best seller list Sunday.

novelist Nathaniel Benchley and the grandson of humorist Robert Benchley.

The WPIX job was his last. "It was supposed to be part-time," Mr. Benchley said, "but when you figure in the round-trip commute to New York it becomes full-time. So in March of last year I quit. There I was with a wife and two kids, a house in Pennington, a first novel just coming out, and $240 in the bank."

"Then," he continued, "on April 24, this thing exploded." On that day Mr. Benchley's publisher, Doubleday and Company, held an auction for the paperback rights to "Jaws." The winner was Bantam, with a bid of $575,000. The avalanche was on. Movie rights were sold to Universal; foreign language rights were picked; Book-of-the-Month Club rights were purchased. Within weeks the book that Mr. Benchley had written on the basis of a $1,000 advance had grossed $1.25 million. And the first copy of "Jaws" had not yet been printed.

Spectacular Luck. Not all of the income goes directly to the author—he and Doubleday split the paperback rights 50-50, for example. And all of the payments are spread out over a six or seven-year period. "I was just spectacularly lucky," said the 33-year-old writer. "What it actually means is that for the next six to seven years I won't have to hustle up magazine articles to make a living. I'll be able to do what I want."

Literary critics of "Jaws" have been less enthusiastic than the financial appraisers. Time magazine produced the most scathing review, calling the novel "Moby Dick in a bathtub." Mr. Benchley hasn't read that review. "My agent told me not to," he said.

For the most part, however, the reviewers have been favorable toward "Jaws," which on a literal level is the story of a great white shark that terrorizes a Long Island resort community.

Mr. Benchley's interest in sharks began when he was a child spending summers on Nantucket. "We used to go out swordfishing," he said. "We never saw any swordfish but we saw a lot of sharks."

Sharks to Drugs. His next novel, due in July, will also have an oceanic setting. Both he and his wife, Wendy, are accomplished scuba divers. "A couple of winters ago we explored the wreck of a ship sunk off Bermuda. It went down filled with all kinds of drugs—that will be where the novel takes off," Mr. Benchley said. "Of course now the wreck has been destroyed and the drugs are inaccessible, but that won't happen in the novel."

In addition to the novel, Mr. Benchley's agenda includes the screenplay for the movie on television game shows and several magazine assignments. He also did the screenplay for the movie version of "Jaws" for Universal. "They're shooting it right now."

The writer got up from his chair to get the morning's mail. "The page proofs from the New York Times. I'm going on the best seller list this week. Number 10." He opened the package and stared at the page confirming what he had just said. He shook his head back and forth. "There it is. What the hell," he said quietly.

Mr. Benchley returned to his chair beneath the shark's steady gaze. "That's very important to make the Times' list," he said. "Even though the financial success of this book is guaranteed, my success in selling the next book hinges on how well this one does. To stay on that list, to keep the momentum, it needs to sell 3,000 to 4,000 copies a week. That's a lot of books."

Big Business. Until the publication of "Jaws" and even to this day, the publishing industry has been a mysterious giant to Mr. Benchley. "It's a big, complicated business," he said. "I wish I could understand all that's going on."

When Doubleday first sent the manuscript of "Jaws" to Bantam, the paperback publisher offered $250,000 for the rights, $300,000 if it made the Times' best-seller list. "That was the first indication we had it would be successful," Mr. Benchley said. "I wanted to take it, my agent wanted to take it, but Doubleday said we could do better. Then they held the auction."

The publisher also drove a hard bargain for the film rights, making one condition of their sale the appointment of Mr. Benchley as screenwriter.

The writer was asked if the novel contained some sort of metaphor that the publishers and film producers thought could be marketed wholesale to the American people. "No, they didn't see 'Jaws' as another 'Jonathan Livingston Seagull.' It was just a good adventure story with suspense," Mr. Benchley said. The novel does in fact contain metaphors and subplots. The great white is not the only shark feeding on the Long Island resort community. Its presence reveals the presence of other afflictions as well, from loan sharks on one level to jealousy and resentment on another. Sharks feed not only on other creatures, but also on themselves.

If it reminds readers of "Moby Dick" on any scale, it might also suggest the Book of Job.

Heavy Polish. But Mr. Benchley warned that little of this will come through in the movie version. "I did three revisions of the screenplay," he said. "When I was done the producer then hired another guy to come in and do what they call a polish."

He didn't want to take a chance with anything. But to call this a polish. Well it's like referring to a gang rape as heavy necking. Everything's been changed."

The phone rang again. It was the book editor of the Trenton Times. "Yeah, it just made it. Number 10. No, it doesn't have a chance of ever being Number 1. I'm up against Gore Vidal, Allen Drury, Graham Greene, Agatha Christie, Thornton Wilder, Helen Mac Innes—the biggest names in the business are on that list."

Mr. Benchley returned to his chair in front of the shark. He was obviously caught up in the jaws of the publishing business and he was faring very nicely.

The Rising Generation

Galatians 5:1, 13, 21, and 14 — "Freedom is what we have — Christ has set us free! Stand, therefore, as free men, and do not allow yourselves to become slaves again.... My brothers, you were called to be free. But do not let this freedom become an excuse for letting your physical desires rule you.... I warn you.... those who do those things will not receive the kingdom of God.... But....those who belong to Christ Jesus have put to death their human nature, with all its passions and desires." (Today's English Version).

An exchange student from Europe, after a period of study here, asked if she would like to remain in America, gave this reply: "America is indeed a wonderful land in which to live. I should like the advantages of your way of living, but I'm afraid I'm not a big enough person to live in such freedom."

Big enough for freedom! Does the idea ever strike us that the privilege of freedom demands moral responsibility greater than you and I can match or muster by ourselves? We do not hesitate to ask whether some underprivileged nation in Africa or Asia is ready for freedom and independence, but we shrink from asking ourselves whether we are really big enough for freedom.

None of us can begin to be big enough for freedom until he understands and takes seriously the fact that freedom by its very nature has a double implication: it means freedom from something and freedom for something. It involves two questions, as Leslie Cooke has reminded us, "Liberty, what from? Liberty, what for?" Like a storage battery freedom has both negative and positive poles, and what it can do and what it can be depend upon our taking both of these into account.

During those terrible days of slave trading in the 17th century, a sailing vessel with 200 blacks under the decks was on its way from Africa when the slaves broke free, overcame the crew and tossed them all overboard. Now they were free — so they thought! For suddenly they found themselves in real trouble; they discovered that no one of them knew how to sail a ship. They were not big enough for their newly-found freedom. Probably they gloated for a moment over their success in gaining "freedom from," which usually requires little moral or intellectual ingenuity on the part of anyone; but "freedom for what," they had not bargained for and this precipitated their doom.

How frequently has modern society found itself in the same awkward predicament! In our frenzy to be free from so many things, we have failed to notice that the most important question is: What is our freedom for? What does our possession of it imply and entail? And our refusal to face up to these questions is illustrated by the actions of certain groups to which more than a few of us belong.

Here is one group of people, for example, who turn to society with an attitude of blunt truculence and say: "Feed us!" "The state owes us a living," they declare, "and, therefore, the government should take care of us." They consider democratic freedom as their being relieved from all personal responsibility and accountability and they fail to see that in this kind of complete dependence lies one of the worst kinds of slavery we can know. The driving spirit of the rugged pioneer has gone out of them and is replaced by a moral and intellectual flabbiness that wants successful careers given to them ready-made; the abundant life with all its ingredients ready-mixed; and by the flick of a switch to have handed to them a packaged solution to life's every problem. ...

Here is another group who have been caught by the easy, yet compressing, tendency to conform. They live by a one-dimensional standard and are ruled by a single slogan: everybody else is doing it. They live in constant fear of being caught out of step with the crowd. ...

Indeed Ernest T. Campbell pointed recently to the peculiar aberration among the "Jesus people" of our day. He indicated that the command of Jesus was always "come" and "go" (come after me but also go into the diversified areas of life on a costly mission), whereas the "Jesus people" come but never go. Unfortunately in all these cases we've named, there is a common flight from individuality to where there is never any freedom to rise above a group imposed stereotype or to shake off the shackles of conformity.

Now what we have seen thus far is that personal freedom is always in a state of danger — and will continue to be — until we learn how to handle meaningfully and with proper balance these two important aspects: freedom from and freedom for. As Professor Trueblood once said, "Without some moral or spiritual illumination, freedom can be a great deceiver." This was the mistake of the French Revolution: freedom from the tyranny of the aristocratic class was simply exchanged for the despotism of Napoleon. So also with the Russian Revolution: the slavery of the Czars was merely replaced by the nightmare of Stalin's police state. In each case simple people obtained their freedom by any method available, but they did not know that the means by which they got it could usher in other tyrannies equally terrible. ...

As Christian men and women we have been offered true freedom: Christ can liberate us from the aching burden of remorse over the past, from the harsh requirements of living merely by human laws and social protocol, and from the gnawing oppression of doubt and meaninglessness and death. But he does this not simply for you and me to have our fling, so to speak; it is for a purpose. In the Bible freedom is never an end in itself; it is a means; it provides for higher spiritual development. Freedom in the biblical sense means that we are free to become human, that is, to become what God wants us to be. And therefore only that person whose life is redeemed and whose powers are controlled by his fixed allegiance to Someone better and nobler than himself, only he is big enough for freedom. ...

Two hundred years ago our country dared to pick up the badge of freedom and for a period of history the world saw in us the focus of the nations' hope. But somehow we lost our way. We talked too much about "freedom from" and failed to come fully to grips with "freedom for" — a sense of national purpose which demands our saying "No" to self and "Yes" to the cost of the well-being of all humanity. This is the price to be paid. This is the only alternative to the mess we are in. Samuel Rutherford, the saintly Scot, knew that the price of freedom was to accept the way of the cross when he said, "He that will take that crabbit tree and carry it cannily will yet find it to be such a burden as wings are to a bird and sails to a boat." This is the picture of true freedom, are we big enough to pay for it?

LASER ADVANCE MADE

By RCA-Princeton. As many as 25,000 persons may someday talk simultaneously over a single laser beam in a high grade telephone circuit employing a new electro-optic modulator developed by RCA scientists.

The new device — which can also modulate a laser beam to carry up to 20 TV programs at one time — represents a major electronics advance, according to Dr. William M. Webster, Vice President of RCA Laboratories in Princeton.

It is the first electro-optic modulator truly compatible with integrated circuits and capable of spatial switching, or aiming, the direction of a laser beam. Furthermore, he added, it can operate over wave lengths extending from the visible to the near infrared.

Ever since the laser was invented more than a decade ago, Dr. Webster said, scientists have worked to take advantage of its tremendous capacity to process and transmit information. Many effective modulators — which insert information into a laser beam — have been developed, but the new RCA unit is simpler to make and thus has low cost potential coupled with small size, high speed, and low voltage and power requirements, Dr. Webster added.

The new modulator is expected to find applications not only in commercial telephone, radio and television communications and specialized space and military systems using optical fiber transmission lines, but also in a variety of systems requiring a wide range of laser modulation from a few cycles per second to billions of cycles per second (GHz). One promising application is in controlling lasers employed in facsimile systems.

Dr. Webster cautioned that the new RCA modulator is still in the research stage and that several problems must be solved before it can be part of a practical optical fiber communications system. However, he added, RCA is enthusiastic about the possibilities and plans to continue to pursue research on this "communication system of tomorrow."

The new modulator was developed by Dr. Jacob M. Hammer and William Phillips of the RCA Laboratories. Their work has been partially supported by the Office of Naval Research.

PIERSON IS PICKED

For State Labor Program. J. J. Pierson, 5303 Fox Run Drive, Plainsboro, has been named special assistant for labor programs by Joseph A. Hoffman, Commissioner of the N. J. Department of Labor and Industry.

Mr. Pierson, a member of the International Union of Operating Engineers, joins the department immediately. He has experience in publishing as an associate publisher of "Doctors' Finances", a financial magazine, and in the New York and American stock exchanges. He was an account executive at Hayden, Stone, Inc.

A former lieutenant in the Army, Mr. Pierson is a graduate of Pennsylvania Military College and received his B.S. in economics in 1969. He has also attended the New York Institute of Finance and the Graduate School of Business at Fordham University, where he is a candidate for the master of business administration degree.

PATENT AWARDED

To Western Electric Man. Dr. A.J. Harendza-Harinixma, of 50 Merion Place, Lawrenceville, has been granted a U.S. patent for "Methods of Forming a Conductive Path Using an Oxygen Plasma to Reduce Reflectivity Prior to Laser Machining."

The patent, assigned to the

A.J. Harendza-Harinixma

J.J. Pierson

Western Electric Company in Hopewell, secures for the company a process combination of modern technologies including thin film sputtering, plasma oxidation, and laser vaporization for forming helical conductor paths on the inner walls of millimeter waveguide tubing. It is Dr. Harendza-Harinixma's seventh U.S. Patent and has also been filed in France, England, and Japan. He has a total of 61 foreign patents granted or pending.

FREE SHAMROCKS

At Nassau Savings Friday. Walter Foster, President of Nassau Savings and Loan, has announced that the Association will celebrate St. Patrick's Day by giving away shamrocks Friday at both of Nassau's offices. The shamrocks will be free-of-charge to customers and non-customers alike.

Mr. Foster invites everyone to join in the spirit of St. Patrick's Day by stopping at either 194 Nassau Street or 44 Hightstown Road, Princeton Junction on Friday. At Princeton, the Irish hostess of the day will be Mary Dey, and at Princeton Junction, Kathy O'Neil.

CONTRACT TO BOWERS

For Chemical Plant Addition. Lewis C. Bowers and Sons, Inc., Builders of 341 Nassau Street has been awarded the contract to construct a multi-level addition to a compounding plant off Beverly Road in Burlington for Tenneco Chemicals Intermediates Division. The total contract, including site work, will exceed a quarter of a million dollars.

A FOXY SOLUTION TO THE GAS PROBLEM.

The Fox by Audi gets about 25 miles to the gallon. Which is about average for an economy car. The thing is, the Fox isn't an economy car. It's a sports sedan. It does 0 to 50 in 8.4 seconds. It has sports car steering and suspension. As well as front-wheel drive. And the fact that you can buy a car that has all this (and more) for only $3,400* provides a foxy solution to another problem as well.

A LITTLE IRISH GREEN
At O'Neill's, Of Course. Joseph P. O'Neill, an Irish-American who is also in the business of selling Irish Wolfhounds, Irish setters and other dogs, figured he should spare no expense in celebrating St. Patrick's Day at his kennel on Route 1.

So Mr. O'Neill went to Dublin, located a 3-foot-9 midget, and bought him a round-trip plane ticket to the United States. The midget, Aidan McGovern of Collooney, County Sligo, is a joiner—or a carpenter—by trade. But while he is in the employ of Mr. O'Neill he will be a little Irish leprechaun—a Dublin tailor furnished his green suit for 25 pounds.

Mr. McGovern will appear at the O'Neill Kennels this Saturday and Sunday and also next weekend, from 10 to noon. In an article that appeared in a Dublin newspaper, Mr. McGovern said of his trip: "It is a great opportunity."

HIDEH PAIR CHARGED
With Shoplifting. Two Rider College students were arrested Monday in Bamberger's in the Princeton Shopping Center and subsequently charged by Township police with shoplifting.

Scheduled to appear in Township Court March 20 are Barbara Tirone, 19, of Holmdel, and Susan Osborn, 18, of Stamford, Conn. The two were charged with allegedly stealing two women's tops and four blouses with a combined value of $68.50.

Design Contest Announced.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
In observance of the Bicentennial, the Historical Society of Princeton would like to offer to everyone in the Princeton community the opportunity of submitting a design to be used as an Historic Marker. The Society hopes to designate, with this marker, all buildings of historic or architectural importance that are at least 50 years old by 1976.

The design should not exceed six inches by eight inches and should be suitable for reproduction in bronze, or possibly cast iron. The designs will be non-returnable and should be submitted to the Society with the name, address and phone number of the designer. We would like these between March 15 and May 15. We shall hope to be able to announce the selection of Princeton's Historic Marker's Design on June 10. Here's looking at good, interesting, and creative designs.

I would like to refute the claim made in your Mailbox (February 28) that the recycling program has been unsuccessful.

I have cooperated from its beginning because I believe so heartily in it. Never once have they failed to pick up my papers, glass (two kinds) on different days, and aluminum.

It is time Americans are more saving of their waste and I want to congratulate the ones responsible for this program and hope it will be continued.

Please Watch Out for Dogs.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
Was it your lovely white dog bleeding to death under the wheel of a Borough truck in the 25 mph zone of Mercer Street on Monday, March 4, about 6 p.m.? That's the second dog I've seen pitifully hurt in that stretch between town and Lover's Lane.

I would have stopped and taken data had I not been hurrying to school. It's time to fine drivers for striking animals, and owners for neglecting them by letting them roam at the mercy of cars.

Continue King Holiday.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
The following is a letter sent to the Princeton Regional Board of Education.

The Black Caucus of Princeton would like to express its desire for continuing to recognize the birthday of the late Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. as an official holiday in the Princeton Regional School system.

The life of this man was exemplary of the Christian spirit and humanitarian principles for all of mankind. Should the meaning of this great man's life be lost by the Princeton Schools?

We offer an unequivocal no. We strongly encourage you to continue his recognition with both school programs and an official holiday.

THE BLACK CAUCUS

Police Policy Questioned.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
The following is a letter sent to the Montgomery Township Public Safety Committee.

Because there was not a police car easily available for the full time Montgomery Township Police Officer to arrive at the scene of the early morning accident on Route 206, Montgomery Township,

The pulpit of the Nassau Presbyterian Church, vacant since 1972, was filled Sunday by the calling of the Rev. Dr. Wallace M. Alston Jr. of Durham, N.C., as the new senior pastor.

Dr. Alston has been pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Durham since 1969. He is expected to begin his work in Princeton about May 1.

The new minister was welcomed to Nassau Presbyterian in a special service Sunday. Dr. Alston delivered the sermon, on the subject "The Kingdom Not of This World." A special meeting of the congregation followed, at which time Dr. Alston's calling was approved. His new congregation then greeted him at a reception in the Palmer Square sanctuary.

NEW PREACHER: A 39-year-old native of Kentucky, the Rev. Dr. Wallace M. Alston Jr. has been called as the new senior pastor of the Nassau Presbyterian Church. He fills a position vacant since 1972.

The Nassau Presbyterian Church was formed last June 24 by a union of two former congregations, the St. Andrews Presbyterian and the First Presbyterian churches. Dr. Alston thus will be the first pastor of the new congregation, which has been served since its formation by two associate pastors—the Rev. Joseph O. Rand, Jr. and the Rev. Mac C. Wells; an assistant pastor—the Rev. William R. Forbes; and a pastor emeritus—the Rev. William L. Tucker, who has remained active in visitation.

The pastorates of the two former congregations were vacant at the time of the union. The Rev. Hugh T. Liffiton, pastor of St. Andrews, died in March, 1972, and the Rev. Dr. Donald M. Meisel moved from First Presbyterian to the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Minneapolis, Minn. in September, 1972.

He earned his Bachelor of Arts at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia, majoring in political science, and spent the middle year of his seminary education in Harvard Divinity School. At Union he was awarded the Moses D. Hagez Fellowship.

Before going to Durham he was pastor of churches in Wadesboro, N.C., and Auburn, Alabama. He was a lieutenant (j.g.) in the U.S. Navy, serving as executive officer of the Navy's Harbor Defense Unit in Boston.

Union Planner. Dr. Alston is in the process of transferring his membership from the Southern-based Presbyterian Church U.S., to the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. of which the Princeton congregation is a part. In the former denomination he has served on the Permanent Judicial Commission, the Council on Church and Society, and the Joint Committee on Reunion of the two denominations.

In the Reunion Committee he is chairman of a subcommittee which drafted the plan of union to be presented to the General Assemblies (highest policy-making bodies) of the two denominations next June.

Dr. Alston is married to the former Alice Tharpe Sanders, a graduate of Brown University. They have two daughters and one son.

As Nassau Presbyterian welcomes one pastor, it also is saying good-bye to another. Mr. Forbes, the assistant pastor, has accepted a new position at Presbyterian headquarters in New York. His last sermon will be this Sunday, on the topic "May Our Cups Not Run Over."

main CROP office in the state is staffed by the Rev. Terry Gove in Somerville.

The Princeton office is charged with organizing the state's southern region. "We are not just a church-oriented activity," said Miss Moon. "This is a community-oriented appeal." Anyone wishing to help may call her at 924-2174.

DYING DISCUSSION SET

At Unitarian Church, "Good Dying" will be the topic of the worship service this Sunday and two subsequent seminars at the Princeton Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill Road. The service is at 10, and will be led by Dr. Harry B. Scholefield, Minister Emeritus of the First Unitarian Church of San Francisco.

The first seminar will be Sunday at 8, and will consider the art of dying. The second, at 8 Monday, will focus on good grief. Both will be led by Dr. Scholefield.

The seminars will approach death and grieving as natural, human experiences to be faced openly and honestly. Dr. Scholefield believes that man's fear of dying is related to his fear of living. Good dying and good grieving are arts, he believes, that ought to be learned as well as the art of loving.

Dr. Scholefield is a graduate of Bowdoin College, Harvard School of Divinity and the Philadelphia Psychoanalytic Institute. He holds honorary degrees from the Meadville Theology School and the Starr King School for the Ministry.

DIALOGUE PLANNED

Far Aquinas Institute. The Trenton Diocesan Ecumenical Commission will sponsor a Catholic-Greek Orthodox Dialogue for priests and interested laity Wednesday, March 20, at 1 in the Aquinas Institute, 65 Stockton Street.

Participating will be Fr. John Meyendorff of St. Vladimir's Orthodox Theological Seminary, Tuckahoe, N.Y., and Dr. Thomas Bird of the John XXIII Ecumenical Center of Fordham University. The dialogue will include a historical discussion of Catholic and Orthodox relations and what progress with each walker raising $25 has been made for unity for a total of $1 million. The

BULLETIN NOTES

The Men's Brotherhood of the Six Mile Run Reformed Church, Franklin Park, is sponsoring congregational breakfast Saturday at 8:30 in the Fellowship Hall. Donation is $1 and women may come free as guests of the men. Dr. Howard Hageman, new President of the New Brunswick Theological Seminary, will be the guest speaker.

Trinity Episcopal Church's first "Treasure and Rumage Sale" will be Saturday in Pierce Hall, 33 Mercer Street, from 9:30 to 4:30. The planners report a large supply of new and nearly new clothing, as well as kitchen utensils, books, games, toys, a lawnmower, shutters, snow tires and "innumerable other items."

The Most Reverend and Right Honorable Frederick Donald Coggan, D.D., Archbishop of York and Primate of England, will preach at Trinity Church this Sunday at 11. Dr. Coggan is a noted Biblical scholar and theologian, as well as a preacher of commanding stature in England.

A tea for the benefit of Women's Day will be held Sunday from 4 to 7 at the Mount Pisgah A.M.E. Church, Witherspoon and Maclean streets. The donation is $2. Mrs. Nellie Ware is chairman of the affair.

The Women's Guild of the Six Mile Run Reformed Church, Franklin Park, will hold a fish fry Thursday, March 21, from 5 to 7:30, at the church on Route 27. Dinner will include French fries, cole slaw, French bread, homemade pie or cake, and coffee, tea or milk.

Prince of Peace Lutheran Church has changed its worship hours. Sunday worship now begins at 10, followed by Sunday school and adult school at 11. Services are held in the Maurice Hawk School on Clarksville Road in Princeton Junction. For more information call the Rev. Frederick Schott, 799-1753.

Obituaries

Basil W. Stetson, 57, of Drake's Corner Road, died March 8 in the Princeton Medical Center. He was a retired executive of the Coca Cola Company.

Born in Macon, Georgia, Mr. Stetson attended the Allen-Stevenson School, St. Paul's School of Concord, N.H., and Yale University. He worked in Baltimore and Springfield, Mass., for Coca Cola before joining the company's national sales division in Atlanta, Georgia.

He volunteered for Army service in 1940 and was commissioned a lieutenant, serving on the military staff and faculty of Louisiana State University as an artillery instructor. He then joined the 749th Field Artillery Battalion and accepted the surrender of Japanese forces in Cheju do Island, Korea. He remained there for a year with the occupation forces at Pusan.

Following the war he formed the Coca Cola Bottling Company of Bridgeton and later the Basil W. Stetson Company, a food vending business. He retired in 1961.

He and his family had moved to Princeton from Bridgeton in 1954. He worked for the Hospital Fete and was active in sportsman's activities, including Ducks Unlimited and the newly formed Wild Turkey Federation of America, of which he was a director.

Trinity Member. He was in the Ushers' Guild at Trinity Church. His memberships included the Woodcock Rod and Gun Club, the Corinthian Yacht Club, the New York Yacht Club, the Edgartown Yacht Club, the Leash, the Pilgrims of the United States, the Nassau Gun Club, the Nassau Club, the Church Club of New York and the Edgartown Reading Club.

Surviving are his wife, Elizabeth McChristie Stetson; one son, Basil Jr., at home; three daughters, Mrs. Emil A. Kratochvil Jr. of New York, Mrs. Frederick B. Beams of Plymouth, N.H., and Miss Lola Lamarr Stetson, at home; his mother, Mrs. Eugene W. Stetson of Southport, Conn.; two brothers, Eugene W. Stetson and Charles P. Stetson, both of Southport; two sisters, Mrs. Robert P. Hatcher of Fort Valley, Georgia, and Mrs. Lola Haverstick, of Morris, Conn.; and four grandchildren.

The funeral was in the Princeton University Chapel. Interment was in St. Matthew's Cemetery, Bedford, N.Y. Arrangements were made by Mather Funeral Home.

Contributions may be made to the Rector's Discretionary Fund, Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street.

Robert S. Hendrickson, 82, of 7223 Winchester Drive, St. Louis, Missouri, died March 6 in Missouri Baptist Hospital. He was a teacher of Latin at the Lawrenceville School for 35 years.

Born in Lawrenceville, he lived there until five months ago. He retired from teaching in 1957. For many years he was active as superintendent of the Sunday School and elder at the Lawrenceville Presbyterian Church.

Surviving are two sons, Robert S. Jr. of Orinda, Calif., and John H. of New York; one daughter, Mrs. G. Robert Buttrick of St. Louis; two sisters, Mrs. Dudley Wilcox of Princeton and Mrs. Percy VanZandt of Blawenburg; nine grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

A service under the direction of the Mather Funeral Home was held at the Lawrenceville Presbyterian Church. Interment was in the Lawrenceville Cemetery. Contributions may be made to the church.

Charles E. Tessein, 61, of 5 Wellington Drive, Princeton Junction, died March 7 in West

Windsor Township. He had been employed at Educational Testing Service for the past 27 years.

Born in Pluckemin, he was a resident of the Princeton area for the past 45 years. He was a member of Mercer Engine Company No. 3.

Survivors include his wife, Julia Fischer Tessein; two sons, Terry C. of West Barnstable, Mass., and William F. of Princeton Junction; one brother, Rudolph F. of Princeton; one sister, Mrs. Christopher Wilson of Trenton; and four grandchildren.

Services were held at the Kimble Funeral Home. Interment was in Princeton Cemetery. Contributions may be made to the Mercer County Heart Association, 639 Pennington Avenue, Trenton.

Orlando A. Petrone, 96, of 410 Euclid Street, Miami Beach, Florida, died March 6 at his home. A retired shoemaker, he lived in Lawrenceville 55 years.

Born in Muro Lucan, Italy, he owned and operated his shoe repair shop in Lawrenceville for 45 years. He retired to Miami Beach in 1962.

He was a 50-year member of the Lawrenceville Volunteer Fire Company and was a member of the Lega Marconi Lodge in Princeton.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Assunda Terrotola Petrone; one son, Pasquale A. of Hollywood, Calif.; and several nieces and nephews.

A Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated in St. Paul's Church, Princeton. Interment will be in the parish cemetery under direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

Mrs. Rosalia Venier, 88, of 317 Witherspoon Street, died March 7 at her home. She had resided in Princeton for the past 40 years.

A native of Italy, she was a member of the Altar and Rosary Society of St. Paul's Church, Princeton, and the Sons of Italy. She was the widow of John Venier.

Surviving are three sons, Mario of Trenton, Bruno of Duxbury, Mass., and Velio of Princeton; one brother, Michael Venier of Duluth, Minn.; one sister, Mrs. Genofefa Fabiani of Princeton; eight grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren.

A Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated at St. Paul's Church. Interment was in the parish cemetery under direction of the Kimble Funeral Home.

Mrs. Ada Waldron Hightower, 77, of 88 Columbia Avenue, Hopewell, died March 8 in Donnelly Memorial Hospital.

The widow of George Hightower, she was active in the Second Calvary Baptist Church, belonging to the Pastor's Aid Society, the Missionary Circle, the Woman's Club and the Prayer Band.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Hester Coleman of Hopewell, Mrs. Louella Hamilton of Trenton, and Mrs. Geneva Waldron of Skillman; one son, Lee T. Hightower of Trenton; one sister, Mrs. Jennie Terry of Hopewell; 19 grandchildren and 40 great-grandchildren.

The funeral was at the Second Calvary Church. Interment was in Stoutsburg Cemetery.

Mrs. Eleanor Harmon Harsh, 64, of Canal Road, Griggstown, died March 6 at the Princeton Medical Center after a long illness.

She retired last year from the proprietorship of the Carriage House, Colonial Farms, Middlebush. Born in Nashville, Tennessee, Mrs. Harsh became a buyer for Macy's in New York in 1940 and purchased the Carriage House in 1947.

She is survived by her husband, George. A funeral service was held privately.

Mrs. Marion L. Crowell, 83, of 51 North Tulane Street, died March 11 in the Princeton Medical Center.

Born in South Yarmouth, Mass., she had resided in Princeton for the past 60 years. She was employed by the First National Bank of Princeton for 15 years until her retirement in 1958.

She was a member of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Princeton, past matron of Princeton Chapter 91, Order of the Eastern Star, and a member of Nassau Presbyterian Church.

The wife of the late Eldridge B. Crowell, she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. David S. Lloyd III of Princeton; a son, Eldridge B. Crowell Jr. of Princeton Junction; three grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

A service will be held Thursday at 2 in the Kimble Funeral Home. Interment will be in All Saints' Cemetery. Calling hours are from 7 to 9 Wednesday. Contributions may be made to the intensive care unit of Princeton Medical Center.

Ira M. King, 43, of Hollow Road, Skillman, died March 10 in the Princeton Medical Center.

A native of Princeton, he was a lifelong resident of this area. He retired after spending 20 years in the Air Force.

Survivors include his parents, Andrew L. and Blanche L. King; a sister, Mrs. Naomi Rodrigues of Princeton; and three brothers, Donald and Robert of Princeton and Stephen of Skillman.

The funeral was held in Trenton. Interment was in Princeton Cemetery.

Mrs. Vernita Liebermann Lander, 74, of 686 Parker, Detroit, Mich., died February 28 in the Princeton Medical Center. She was the mother of Mrs. Harold Furth of Princeton.

Born in Joliet, Illinois, she was employed as a registered nurse for 50 years at Harper Hospital in Detroit. She was a member of the American Nurses Association and the Jefferson Avenue United Methodist Church of Detroit.

Other survivors are a son, Ted Lander of Berkeley, Calif.; and one grandson.

A service was held at the Mather Funeral Home, with interment in Princeton Cemetery.

with the necessary equipment, lights, radio, road flare, etc., two additional persons trying to assist were injured. It is our belief that as the municipal building is the headquarters for Montgomery Township that a police car should be stationed at or near that location for the use of the only full time Police Officer now employed by Montgomery Township.

As I was on the scene immediately after the accident happened there were no visible means observed other than the ambulance light. Also noted was that the Montgomery Township full time Police Officer was at the scene in his personal car. How can the full time Police Officer perform his duty when there are two police cars available in the Montgomery Township area but not at his disposal for such emergencies unless he goes clear across the Township in order to get access to one?

It has been learned that the police cars are parked at a PART-TIME Police Chief's residence, who by the way, works full time out of the Montgomery Township area in another capacity. If only one police car is in use at one time, why is not one of these cars parked at or near the Municipal Building which is across the Township from where they are now parked? Maybe more Montgomery Township TAXPAYERS should know just how their Police Department is set up!

News Of The CHURCHES

FOOD APPEAL BEGINS

CROP Activities Listed. The Community Hunger Appeal of the Church World Service, known as CROP, has opened an office in Princeton as part of a state-wide effort to raise $1 million by October 20 of this year. The Church World Service is an interdenominational relief program involving 32 different religious organizations.

This Saturday CROP will explain its objectives at a program beginning at 9:30 at the Labor Education Building of Rutgers University, Ryders Lane, New Brunswick. Guests will include the Ambassador from Senegal, Andre Jean Coulbary. Griggstown Reformed Church is organizing car pools from the Princeton area.

Sunday at noon the Christian Action Board of Trinity Church is sponsoring a "Feed-the-Hungry Lunch" at Pierce Hall, 33 Mercer Street. The speaker will be Miss Cathy Moon, who staffs the Princeton CROP office, located in the Chambers Street building of Nassau Presbyterian Church, 26 Nassau Street.

A symbolic lunch of bouillon and crackers will be served. The admission of $3 for adults and $1 for children and young people will go directly to the Trinity Lenten appeal fund for the relief of human suffering. Miss Moon will show slides and discuss the problems of famine and drought in various parts of the world.

CROP's main method of raising funds, Miss Moon explained, is through "Walks for the Hungry." Walkers solicit pledges for each mile they cover in a CROP walk. Last year 21 such walks were held in New Jersey, raising $50,000.

Bigger Goal. This year the goal for New Jersey is more ambitious: 200 Community Walks, 200 walkers in each, with each walker raising $25 has been made for unity for a total of $1 million. The

RETURN TO THE CHARACTER AND SPACE OF YESTERYEAR. — This large rambling colonial farmhouse in Princeton Township will give your family a sense of roots and a tie to the past. Perhaps more important than its five working fireplaces, random wide board floors and hand hewn beamed ceilings is the feeling of freedom imparted by its many large rooms. Where else could you find seven rooms downstairs, two staircases, and six large bathrooms, and four baths upstairs? The basic work has been done. The slate roof and plumbing and heating is sound. Now is the time to paint and decorate to suit your own taste and way of life. With two acres and a small barn you can have the option of a riding ring and gardens. There is splendid walking in the nearby Herrontown Woods and Autumn Hill Reservation.

AN EXTRA BONUS. — Our center hall four bedroom colonial in Lawrence Twp. has a large room downstairs which can be used as a fifth bedroom or a large office or hobby room. This is in addition to a living room, formal dining room, a large modern kitchen with family size breakfast area. It also has an oversize family room and 2½ baths. There is a huge screened-in back porch, a full basement, two car garage, an elaborate brick patio, central air, wall to wall carpeting throughout, and a beautifully landscaped lot.

$75,000.

WEST WINDSOR

AN ORGANIC FARM MAY BE IN YOUR FUTURE. If you've ever dreamed of tapping your own maple syrup or tasting the freshness of fruit from your own trees, this is the place for you. Located on 1.7 acres in nearby West Windsor, our new listing offers just enough land, a 4 bedroom home, and a barn and the necessary outbuildings to do your own thing. The house has a large country kitchen, spacious dining room, and a parlor style living room, downstairs, while upstairs are four bedrooms and a floored attic. The barn has a few stalls and ample storage space for hay. The property is zoned light industry and research, but may eventually have even better possibilities in the future. In an age when the price of everything around you is going sky high, consider the security of being able to make it on your own. $49,000

The following houses will soon be available in West Windsor in a price range that one can comfortably afford:

An exquisite huge colonial with massive bay window with copper canopy, five bedrooms upstairs, and a study downstairs. $71,500

Caucus Keeps Quiet Watch over Concerns of Black Community

"You might say we consider ourselves a watch-dog group—responding to developments in Princeton, as warranted, in the interests of the black community."

This general characterization of The Black Caucus came from one of the Caucus' members, Leonard Brown, as several members of the organization talked, one recent afternoon, about the accomplishments of the group since its formation a scant 18 months ago.

"We're not an action group," Mr. Brown explained, "but we do attempt to meet with people who could influence developments."

In the months since the fall of 1972, when the Caucus was formed out of a meeting attended by about 20 black Princeton residents, the group has concerned itself with overpricing in drug stores, with protection of residents in the John-Witherspoon area from purse-snatchings and muggings, with broken sidewalks on Witherspoon Street.

It supported the Borough's rent-levelling and housing inspection ordinances, and the Township's abortive Yedlin public housing project. It endorsed Governor Brendan Byrne and Borough Councilman Joseph P. Moore—both elected—and has announced caucus endorsement of Virginia Euell (see box).

Catalysts. "A catalytic group," is the way Terry Steaple defines the Caucus, and he adds, "we want the Caucus to represent a cross-section of Princeton's black community."

Mr. Steaple himself is a young actor-director who is head of the Princeton Youth Center's Hansberry Arts Workshop. Leonard Brown is Director of the Center.

Other Caucus organization representatives are Khadija Abdul-Muizz, college-career counsellor at the Youth Center; Charlotte Gipson, Administrator of the Youth Center; the Princeton Regional Board of Education; the ministers of Princeton's three black churches: the Rev. Leon Gipson, Mt. Pisgah; the Rev. Floyd N. Rhodes, Witherspoon Presbyterian and the Rev. Edward Smith, First Baptist.

Also, Joan E. Hill, director of the Princeton Joint Civil Rights Commission; Borough Councilman Joseph Moore; the Rev. Keenan Orro, Princeton's street minister; Fred Tyler, director of Community House; Frank Wells of the John-Witherspoon Civic Association; Grace Wilson, president of the NAACP; Consuelo Campbell of the Elizabeth Taylor Byrd Scholarship Fund; Gwen Foster, a senior at Princeton University; Daniel Sawyer, of the University staff; Leonard Rivers of the University athletic department and Joseph Taylor, of Princeton Theological Seminary.

No Officers. The Black Caucus has a completely

democratic "non-structure" (probably to be an annual affair) or the showing of the Dr. Martin Luther King film, "From Montgomery to Memphis."

"Since we all represent an institution or a constituency," Mr. Brown observed with a smile, "you might say we pressure each other!"

The Caucus has the strong, across-the-board support of the black community. Communication is two-way and steady. From the pulpits of the three churches, the ministers have an outreach of around a thousand people each month. They not only address a large group, but encourage others in the church to speak.

For general communication, the Caucus uses informal flyers distributed to homes, and soon there will be a monthly news letter on issues and concerns.

"We distributed one flyer encouraging people to support the Yedlin public housing project, and through flyers we urged support of the Borough's two housing ordinances," Mr. Brown says. "We also circulated supporting petitions and gave them to Borough officials."

"Then, after the rent-control and inspection ordinances were passed, we had flyers explaining them in detail and showing how they protect tenants and what tenants should do if they think their problems come under the new ordinances."

Flyers also urge people to vote in elections, or to attend a Caucus-sponsored event like last summer's Black Festival

Miss Euell Endorsed Virginia Euell, acting principal of The Middle School, has been formally endorsed by The Black Caucus, whose members urge her appointment as principal.

"We feel strongly that she has proven herself a capable educator and leader," declared Leonard Brown, Black Caucus member, in commenting on the group's action.

"To have a black administrator in a position of such importance would do much to enhance the perception black folk have of the school," Mr. Brown said.

In a formal statement, the Caucus says that Miss Euell "is held in high regard by professionals, students and laymen alike. She has intimate knowledge of the students, system and community. "Black students have a great need for identification within our schools," the statement declares, "While black administrators and faculty are not the panacea for this need, they most certainly represent a positive element for both black and white students."

were over purse-snatching and mugging, the Rev. Mr. Gipson assembled a citizens patrol of men in the black community to provide protection. Also, at Caucus request, Borough police sent foot patrols into the area.

"That was doubly beneficial," Mrs. Gipson observes. "The police officers and the kids in the neighborhood got to know one another, and had a chance to talk with one another."

A Look Ahead. What are plans for the future?

The Black Caucus has an ad hoc committee examining the report of the schools' Human Relations Committee and will talk with school board members about ways to handle human relations problems in the schools.

On Sunday, March 31, at Mt. Pisgah, Nida Thomas, director of the state's Office of Equal Education Opportunity, will speak under Caucus sponsorship.

Later, the Caucus will be host to the Registrar of Selassie University in Ethiopia, who will be in Princeton for a month.

Incidentally, expenses involved in these projects are met either by "passing the hat," in the words of one Caucus member, or by using the facilities of an organization with which the Caucus has liaison.

In a broader look at the future, the Caucus plans to find out whether the Princeton area might be eligible for more in Federal grants, and will study recently released 1970 census figures showing the number of black residents of Princeton.

"These figures can give us perspective," points out the Rev. Edward Smith. "They will give us something tangible to focus on." A Caucus meeting may be devoted to this census study.

Greater Coverage Urged. The Caucus has urged more extensive coverage of events in the black community. One outcome of this drive is the radio program "Black Flack," heard over WHWH on Wednesdays at 1:05 p.m. and Saturdays at 6:07 p.m.

"We think we've sensitized some institutions to the black community," is Mr. Brown's observation.

A teach-in at Mt. Pisgah, sponsored jointly with the New Jersey NAACP, was devoted to the question of the Schockley-Innis debate. Both townspeople and students participated.

The black community has turned to the Caucus, pointing out problems and concerns. The public schools' dropping of a holiday honoring Dr. King is one recent issue.

When black residents of the John Street-Witherspoon Street area told Caucus members how alarmed they

"The Daughter in Law" a Major Theatrical Event

"Beautiful" is so over-worked a word these days that one hesitates to use it seriously, but it is the word for the McCarter Theatre Company's American premiere production of "The Daughter in Law." The D. H. Lawrence drama opened last Thursday and continues this week from Wednesday evening through Sunday matinee and evening.

As a production, this one has it all: perfect casting, totally convincing acting, strong but never show-offy direction, fine sets and costumes.

The first American production of a play by the British novelist and poet whose works include "Sons and Lovers" and "Lady Chatterly's Lover" is a national news event, one for which Prof. Daniel Seltzer, Chairman, and other members of the McCarter Board deserve our congratulations and thanks.

Like "Sons and Lovers," which many will remember as an outstanding film, the play is clearly autobiographical, drawn from Lawrence's youth in the early 1900s in an English coal-mining town, and from the warring relationship between his miner father and his strong-willed, socially and intellectually superior mother.

Characters in Combat. Lawrence weaves his spell with only five characters, locked in classic combat positions.

Old Mrs. Gascoigne is the widow of a miner killed in the mines, mother of two mining sons who figure in this story, and four who don't. She is played with tall, gaunt ferocity by Virginia Downing.

Luther, her next to youngest son is a weak but appealing man, who, as played by Anthony McKay, has genuine male attractiveness despite the weakness and, in much of Act 1, a film of coal dust.

He is newly wed to Minnie, the daughter-in-law of the title (give or take a couple of hyphens), who has money of her own -- £20 pounds -- and who is cuts above him in taste, intellect, and ambition. As Minnie, Jobeth Williams is tall, slim, spirited, imperiously lovely; and imaginatively cast to suggest how the elder Mrs. Gascoigne might have looked before hardships eroded her handsomeness.

Touching Toughness. The youngest son, Joe (whom his mother always calls "our Joe," sometimes even when addressing him), is a sloppy, nose-picking, broken-armed yet quickly intelligent and sensitive young man, played with touching toughness by Christopher Murney.

Anne Sheldon plays the mother of a simpleminded girl got with child by Luther some weeks before his marriage. She is perhaps a bit soft seeming and refined for the role but she effectively establishes the corrupting effect of poverty when she offers to conceal the impregnator's identity for 40 pounds.

The central conflict of the play is between Minnie and Luther. Will they ever work around their differences in taste and learn to express the love they could feel for each other? Or, under the pressures of incompatibility and grinding poverty, will they go on fighting -- she nagging, he drinking -- until they destroy each other? Having married partly for the wrong reasons -- she in fear of becoming an old maid, he out of sheer inability to resist a strong woman -- will they discover the right ones?

Lawrence, a celebrated antimomist, seems to be blaming man's difficulties on poverty and strong women in about equal measure, and one of the play's least convincing points is that old Mrs. Gascoigne has weakened these sons by dominating or mollycoddling them -- it isn't very clear which -- until Luther is incapable of standing up to Minnie, and Joe is incapable even of having an adult relationship with a woman.

Production Long Delayed. But it is so good a play that you will wonder why it has gone so long unproduced. Without inside knowledge we offer two possible reasons.

First, it was written in the archaic Midlands dialect of Lawrence's youth, and to perform it in that dialect is a formidable challenge. From the advance publicity we were worried that the dialecticians brought in to coach the cast (Randy Danson, Tim Menich) might have put the language beyond our reach.

Not at all. Lawrence had a poet's ear, and even when he uses words we never heard before we nearly always know from their sound what they mean. The glossary in the program helps, but who needs to be told that "blort" means "to bellow loudly" or that "slorm" means "to slink away"?

Far from distracting us, the unfamiliar words serve as a kind of musical counterpoint to the familiar ones, and add not only to the production's convincingness but to its richness. But not every theatre company has the imagination to see how well "The Daughter in Law" might work, and the courage and resources to make it work.

Another Viewpoint. The other possible reason for the play's neglect is that Lawrence's playwright craftsmanship is not up to his poetic writing. His good play does not "build" as great ones must.

Of its three acts, the first is the strongest; the promise of that act never quite pays off. If it did, this would be a masterpiece. The play starts out with ominous thunder and lightning, but the threatened storm passes over. We are left feeling rather relieved that the violence we anticipated and feared did not occur; relieved because we have come to like the characters so much; but a little let down, too. Perhaps the play is truer to life than if it were dramatically more fulfilling, but great plays are both.

But the great virtue of this kind of play faithfully interpreted is that it shows us life, shows it so vividly that we live it. The author draws conclusions, but if we don't agree with his we have the evidence from which to draw our own.

This is magic, with strong, talented people selflessly serving the play, shunning those calculated intrusions of ego that mar so many productions today. Remember the director's name: John Pasquin. He directed "Moon Children" off-Broadway, and he will be heard from again. "The Daughter in Law" is a major theatrical event for Princetonians to be proud of and to enjoy.

A tooth extraction in a dentist's office at an Edwardian seaside resort gets things off to a start. We move to a terrace restaurant presided over by an elegant old waiter, and finally end at a fancy-dress ball with a discussion of such matters as the liberation of women, marital relations, and both filial and paternal obligations. Stephen Porter is directing. Tickets are on sale at McCarter's box-office.

AGE OF HEROINE: 70

Name: Cass McGuire. Vigorous and combative as a spring chicken of 50 with the moral code and wit of somebody under 30, Cass McGuire doesn't quite agree with her family that she belongs in an old-folks' home. Her sparring matches with members of the family occupy "The Loves of Cass McGuire," Brian Friel's comedy that will open next Friday, March 22, at 8:30 p.m. with a Community Players cast. The theatre will be the Little Theatre of the Unitarian Church.

The play has been staged in the round by director Norman Washburne. The same playing area, 12 feet square, doubles for the McGuire living-room in Ireland and Eden House, the nursing home.

AILEY FAVORITES

On Trenton Program. Two dances choreographed by Alvin Ailey will be performed by the Ailey troupe when its dancers come to the War Memorial Theatre in Trenton on Sunday, March 24, at 7:30 p.m. The Princeton Ballet Society is sponsoring the appearance.

"The Lark Ascending," set to the music of Ralph Vaughan Williams, was first performed in 1972; "Love Song," a solo with haunting spirituals, was danced two years ago when the company appeared in Trenton.

Judith Jamison, Ailey's lead dancer, will return to Trenton to star in a new production of "Carmina Burana." Choreographed by John Butler, this composition is based on Carl Orff's collection of 13th-century-style songs and poems. The work is secular in nature.

Tickets are on sale at the War Memorial box-office from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, or by mail with a check and a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Princeton Ballet Society, Box 171, Princeton, N.J.

Prices are $6.95; $5.95 and $4.50 for orchestra seats; $7.50 for loge seats and $5.95; $4.95; $3.50 and $2.00 in the balcony.

TWO, FOR CHILDREN

At YMCA. Two plays for children will be given this Friday at 7:30 p.m. at the YMCA by the actors in The Princeton Street Theatre. Admission is 50c for children and 75c for adults.

"Little Red Riding Hood", half of the double bill, is not the well-known tale all children know, but a similar Russian folk-tale said to be more authentic. It has been translated into English by George Scail from the Russian of Eugene Schwartz. Liz Rothberg is the director.

The second play will be Hans Christian Anderson's "The Snow Queen," directed for Street Theatre by Debbie Bellow. She is co-director of Street Theatre.

After the hour-long program, children and their parents will be invited to meet Little Red Riding Hood, the Snow Queen and all their friends.

MAGICIANS ON STAGE

Contest for Amateurs, Too. Blanchard and Helene, magicians, will give their first performance in this area at Chapin School's "Magic Show" Saturday, March 23, at 1:30 at the Kirby Arts Center of Lawrenceville School. They have performed on the Ed Sullivan Show, Captain Kangaroo, at the White House, hotels and supper clubs throughout this country and England.

A Magic Contest for amateur magicians will be held after the main performance. Contestants must be under 14; there is an entrance fee of $1 and prizes will be awarded. Applicants may call Mrs. Parker Hayden of Harry Chapin and David Bromberg will give an additional late show in Alexander Hall Saturday, March 30, at 11 p.m. The first concert was sold out only two weeks after the box-office opened.

Chapin's current success is his third album, "Short Stories." He first came to fame two years ago with his eight-minute song "Taxi."

Bromberg, known as an instrumental jack-of-all-trades, will be guitarist for this concert. He also plays banjo, mandolin and dobro!

GARDEN

Busting. A pair of Zealous vice squad cops, played by Elliott Gould and Robert Blake, launch a relentless personal series of busts against the Los Angeles vice underworld and the city's chief vicelord. Unfortunately, trying for a combination of action, charm and social comment, "Busting" turns out as a disjointed venture that merges gritty locals, a corrupt legal system and the hip antics of Gould and Blake, achieving uninspired results.

Writer-director Peter Hyams tries hard to make Gould and Blake into a pair of affable, wise-cracking charmers but the story serves mainly as a peg for a variety of crackdowns on L.A.'s seamier haunts. As it turns out, most of their busts are nullified by the higher-ups when the heat gets too close to vice kingpin Allen Garfield.

The action in "Busting" is exaggerated beyond belief; its characters are one dimensional and any attempt at satire is lost in the confusion. The by-now obligatory car chase scenes are well handled, but the film's one big action scene—a shoot-out in L.A.'s biggest marketplace and along crowded streets—is simply not believable. No matter how vengeance-bound, police would not risk the mass panic and bloodshed that occurs here.

Gould is a gangly, gum-chewing slob; Blake keeps an unlit cigarette perpetually dangling from his lips, even after being savagely beaten. The best performance comes from Garfield, whose sweaty self-confidence is beautifully projected.

Vanishing Wilderness. A generally interesting documentary like the ones Disney used to make, "Vanishing Wilderness," while fascinating and frequently beautiful, suffers from repetitiveness in its treatment of similar animals—and from a narration that can only be described as "folksy."

Filmed over a five-year period, the picture consists of many spawning grounds, an alligator mating, a beaver chopping down trees and building a dam, two bighorn sheep butting their horns together, pelicans diving into water for fish, sea otters lying on their backs in the water and using their bellies as tables and eating clams with their hands, male grouse doing a mating dance and a snake bird spearing and swallowing a fish.

See it, the sell line says, before civilization sweeps it all away. At times informative, occasionally witty, but mostly preachy and cloyingly cute, "Vanishing Wilderness" is nonetheless good family fare.

PRINCE

The Fantastic Planet. Proving that a little imagination can go a long way, "The Fantastic Planet" is an imaginative and involved animated science-fiction story. It depicts the battle between civilized giants and more primitive tiny men on a far-away planet.

The somewhat short (72 minutes) animation is out of the Czech studios of Jiri Trnka, featuring the semi-surrealist, semi-impressionistic drawing that has characterized Czech cartoonists with, this time, a dash of "The Yellow Submarine" thrown in.

The story: on a distant planet are two races, one called the Traags, the other the Oms. (The former are huge, blue men and women built like us but with gill-like apparatuses instead of ears. Their society is so advanced that they spend most of their time meditating. As they do so, their minds rise in the air and float about the planet.

The Oms are more or less "us" or what we have become: an illiterate, mob-like hand of cave people, the descendants of the survivors of another burned out planet. The latter is barely tolerated by the Traags; some are kept as pets, others killed indiscriminately as one would kill an insect.

Eventually, of course, things change. The ensuing battle ends in sort of a compromise stalemate that may displease some younger audiences even as it teaches a far more useful lesson. All in all, an informative and entertaining piece of work.

THE WAY IT WAS: The Sons of the Whiskey Rebellion will provide music of the '30s Saturday night at the Unitarian Church. The banjo quartet includes Lawrence King, Derek Williamson, Bruce Force and Carl Sweitzer. Others are Angelo Carnevale, clarinet; John Painter, trumpet; Bob Hall, trombone; Ham Ward, trumpet; Doug Denny, drums; Wiley Sabo, guitar; Duane Grummons, piano; and Jim Painter, bass viol. Further details, this page.

SOUNDS OF TRE'30S

At Benefit Performance. A benefit performance by the Sons of the Whiskey Rebellion will be held Saturday from 9 to 12 at the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill Road. Proceeds will help pay expenses of a training program for volunteers who will learn to counsel prison inmates.

The program, called "Thresholds," is similar to those now in operation in Bucks County, Pennsylvania, and Morris County, New Jersey. It is being sponsored in this area by the Mercer County chapter of the New Jersey Association on Correction. Initial training will be conducted at the facilities of Educational Testing Service during the weekend of March 22-24. The Thresholds Committee hopes to train 70 volunteers; more than 50 applications have already been received.

The Sons of the Whiskey Rebellion are a baker's dozen of Princeton area businessmen who get together on special occasions to create a "Thirties Sound" complete with all the trimmings -- honky-tonk piano, banjos, tunes like "Bill Bailey" and

No admission is charged for the concert, though an offering will be taken. The public is invited.

The next concert in the series on March 24 will be an orchestral program given by the Collegium Musicum of Princeton under the direction of Joseph Kovacs and featuring Lee H. Bristol, Jr., as piano soloist.

LENTEN MUSIC NEXT

in Trinity-All Saints Series. A concert of cantatas for the Lenten Season by 17th and 18th-century composers will be given Sunday at 8 p.m. in Trinity Church by the church's Senior Choir of Girls and Men.

One of this year's Trinity-All Saints' series, it will include Buxtehude's "Jesu Meine Freude;" J. D. Bach's "Ich Lasse Dich Nicht," and Pachelbel's "Was Got Tut, Das is Wohlgetan." A Partita for organ solo on the chorale of this last item will be played by Harold Pysher and James Litton, and an orchestral canon by Pachelbel will also be performed, in addition to the three main choral works.

The 35-voice choir is made up of girls in 8th grade through high school, and men of high school and college age. Conductors will be James Litton, organist and choir-master at Trinity Church, and John Kemp, Jr., and soloists will be Suzan Thompson and Daniel Pratt, both of whom are faculty members at Westminster Choir College.

ORCHESTRA TO PLAY

In Concert at Stuart Day. An informal presentation for all ages and levels of musical sophistication will conclude the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra's statewide concert season when the orchestra appears at the Stuart Country Day School on Sunday, March 24, at 3. Under the direction of Henry Lewis, the concert will feature the original version of Bartok's "Piano Concerto No. 3" by internationally renowned piano soloist Gyorgy Sandor.

Sandor has appeared with leading orchestras and in recital throughout the world. He has recorded with the New York Philharmonic, the Philadelphia Orchestra, the Vienna Symphony, and several others. In 1965, he won the Grand Prix du Disque, the highest award possible, for his recording of the entire piano repertoire of Bela Bartok. He was also the first to record all of the solo piano music of Sergei Prokofiev.

Bartok wrote his Third Piano Concerto after five years of struggling for recognition in the United States, but died before it was finished. The final 17 measures were written by Tibor Serly, and the concerto was given its premiere performance by Sandor in 1946. The Princeton concert will also include Mozart's "Prague" Symphony and Mussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition."

Tickets are available at the Princeton University Store.

Marlboro Proves Exciting, Varied, Full of Agility

Seven players from Marlboro were heard last week in the third concert of this season's Department of Music Chamber Series. This group played on the same high level of ability that previous Marlboro ensembles have consistently demonstrated for Princeton audiences. Their program consisted of Mozart's Quintet in D major, K. 593, Bartok's "Contrasts" for violin, clarinet, and piano, and the Quintet in F major by Bruckner.

Originally intending to open the program with the Bruckner, the group decided instead to place that piece after the Mozart and Bartok, to avoid the effect of having the "filet mignon before the appetizer," as they put it. This was evidently not to make light of the two shorter pieces, for the entire program was played with concentration and involvement.

Although all the musicians played very well, James Buswell, the first violinist and the only performer to appear in all three works, was especially impressive. He played with a confidence and ease that belied the difficulty of his music, and he combined flawless tone and pitch with a fine ability to attack and play even the most staccato passages without the raucous squawks that so often accompany such places. His only musical flaw was a tendency to overbalance the rest of the quintet when other voices should have been more prominent.

The Mozart Quintet which opened the concert was played well except for a quite perceptible balance problem, in which the first violin and viola were louder than their counterparts, who in turn were too much for the cello. The cello was unable to take charge in the solo passages of the minuet; and the first violin never played really softly in the adagio, although the other instruments were holding well back. The best instrumental blending in this piece was heard at the end of the adagio, where rising trill figures contrasted with long descending notes, and in the glowing opening of the minuet. The finale, with its interplay of bouncing motives scattered among all the instruments, was done with good clarity.

The balance problems were alleviated in the Bruckner Quintet, which filled the second half of the program. It is difficult to listen to this piece, since Bruckner is so prone to sit on a motive, repeat it continually, and develop it through extensive sequences and other alterations, until it is virtually desiccated. He also muses on the final tonic of some movements for half a minute or more.

Given these drawbacks, the players still produced many moments of fine music, especially in the slow third movement, where important viola and cello lines emerged without difficulty. At the passionate conclusion of this movement, the first violin played the second theme on the high range of the G-string, adding intensity and color to the sound.

Bruckner's inertial tendencies were most distressing in the scherzo. Whenever the bright opening material appeared, its energy was soon dissipated by ritards and repetitions which slowed the pace far below scherzo level. Nevertheless, the ensemble believed in the music and never succumbed to the doldrums that could easily have threatened their performance.

Bartok's "Contrasts," named for the disparate nature of the instruments it uses, was in fact a contrast to the other works on the program, both in ensemble composition and in musical idiom. Frank Cohen on the clarinet controlled a tremendous dynamic range, the loudest side of which held its own against the most furious fortissimo the violin and piano could produce. On the other end, the entrance of a low note beginning a long upward cadenza was absolutely imperceptible. Buswell played the violin part with abandon, and together with pianist Seth Carlin, the trio convincingly captured and conveyed the flavor of the work.

The tricky Hungarian folk rhythms, especially prominent in the soft middle section of the "Sebes" ("Fast Dance") movement, were competently handled. (Since the piece was commissioned by jazz clarinetist Benny Goodman, one also wonders if any jazz rhythms may have influenced Bartok.)

The special violin techniques common in Bartok's music (such as pizzicato in the left hand while the right hand is bowing; angling the bow to get bridge tone on one string together with fingerboard tone on another; and "scordatura," or special tuning) were executed fluently. The violin and clarinet displayed their contrasting aspects, but at many points, chiefly in the second movement, they combined to produce a surprisingly homogeneous sound. The result was an exciting performance, full of variety and agility.

TWO IN CONCERT
Flutist, Harpsichordist to Play. The Friends of Music at Princeton will present James Winn, flutist and Robert Moreen, Harpsichordist, in a concert on Saturday at 8:30 at Woolworth Center.

Both performers are well known to Princeton audiences, having appeared together and in solo performances on a number of occasions. Mr. Moreen, is a third year graduate student in music at Princeton. He is the originator and director of Musica Alta, a Renaissance performance group and Assistant Conductor of the Glee Club.

Mr. Winn, a graduate of Princeton University, recently received his Ph.D. in English from Yale University. He has played flute with the Princeton University Orchestra, the Norfolk Symphony and was winner of several concerto competitions.

For their appearance in Princeton, their program will be: Telemann; Sonata in G Minor; F. Couperin: Huitieme Concert "Dans Le Gout Theatral"; Berio: Sequenza (1958); J.S. Bach: Sonata in E Major, BWV 1035. The concert is free and open to the public.

VOCAL RECITAL SUNDAY

At Woolworth Center The Friends of Music at Princeton will present Barbara Allen, mezzo-soprano, and Warren Schmaus, bass-baritone, in a recital on Sunday at 3:30 at Woolworth Center. The accompanists will be Mitchell Roth '74 and Shawn Hall '75.

The program will include three duets: "Capriccio" by Antonio Lotti, "Die Nonne und der Ritter" by Brahms and "Herr, ich hoffe darauf" by Heineich Schutz. Solos will include works by C. Von Gluck, Purcell, Schumann, Mussorgsky, John Edmunds, Celius Dougherty and Ned Rorem.

IT'S NEW

To Us

NEW THIS SPRING

From Robert Varga. These days of lingering Watergate discussions, short fuel supplies, and rising food prices can be discouraging at best. Robert Varga is attempting to brighten the picture this Spring with fashions stressing gay colors and soft feminine lines.

Skirts are coming on strong and they all have some zip with either pleats or a gentle flare. Other Spring trends include soft shirt dresses, long evening clothes, hats, and, once again the denim look.

Robert Varga told us that Anne Klein is still leading the sportswear designers, and this season she has concentrated on some fantastic and unusual colors — wisteria, mint and vanilla. In the wisteria we saw a linen-like jacket with a mandarin collar, $66, which can be worn with a matching cable sweater set and a white skirt or pants in the same linen-like material.

Giorgini is showing a beige wool and acrylic sweater set trimmed with red and deep green stripes, $82. These handsome sweaters can be paired with a plaid blouse of the same colors and beige knit skirt or slacks.

Two-piece dresses with soft pleated skirts and matching overblouses are one of this season's looks and by Giorgini we saw a cream colored set. The material drapes nicely and there is a belt to complete the look. Another version using the same material has a skirt with three inverted front pleats and a bloused top with an elastic waist, $150 for each.

Denim is still popular from pants to dresses, and even the designers are using it. Oscar de la Renta II has a group that includes a bias cut wrap skirt, straight-leg pants with a fly front, and a matching shirt jacket, $38 to $48. Setting any of these off is a pretty off-white blouse with a delicate print of single blue flowers.

Easy Wear-Easy Sell. Also in denim is a shirtdress embroidered with white flowers. It has long sleeves, snap closings and a tie waist, $56. This dress and a denim shirt jacket and pants with a tie-dyed look are by Jones New York, a line Mr. Varga says is fabulous in the store as the clothes are easy to wear and easy to sell.

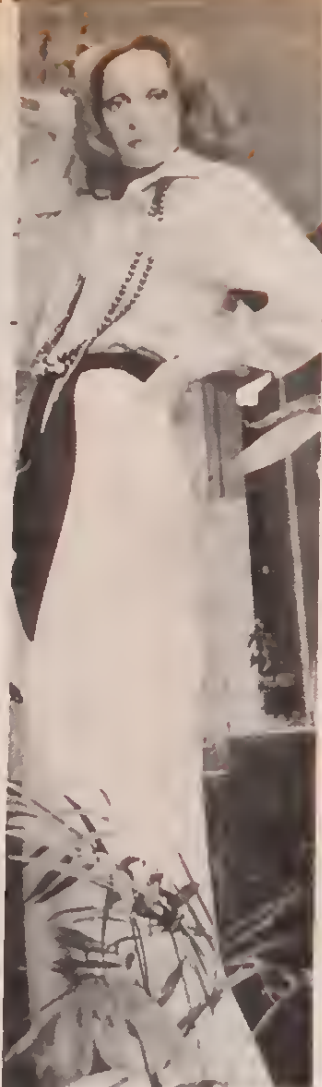

Some of the prettiest shirtwaist dresses were by Albert Nippon. A cheery yellow one with white dots has stitched pleats and a tie waits, $75; and a tan one accented by light brown top-stitching has a stitched bodice, pleated skirt and a soft bow at the neckline, $90.

Other sportswear we saw included a group by Geistex in green, yellow, lavender and white colors. There are solid or striped shirts, and solid or plaid jackets, pants and skirts. The possible arrangements here are endless, and the prices range from $18 to $68.

As always we had our favorites such as the beautiful plaid shirts by Frank Oliver made from the finest cotton; and an Italian knit acrylic sweater set in white with the lower half of each piece boldly striped in gold, green, red and purple, $58. In the same white knit there is a gored skirt with some extra flare near the hem, $34.

Hats Are Back. After a long hiatus, hats are news. With shorter cuts, hair is not as important, and the head is once again being accented by a hat. Two styles we noticed were wide-brimmed straw ones in natural, green or hot pink and smaller felt ones in soft yellow, beige, pale blue and grey, $7 to $10.

Many of the same fashion thoughts are reflected in the junior department. The Clovis Ruffin dresses are simply cut with great lines in an easy-fitting nylon jersey. A green shirtwaist with white trim, collar and sash costs $38, and a melon and deep rose striped dress with several different bias cuts is $40.

SPRING AT ROBERT VARGA: Part of Anne Klein's new Spring collection, the soft, long shirt-dress comes in a delicious mint green color. The full collection includes a coat, skirt, pantsuit, short dress and blouse, and they can all be seen at Robert Varga on Route One.

Spring's mint color is here too in a shirt jacket with a bloused look created by an elasticized waist. By Ellen Tracy there is a matching skirt, fly-front pants, and a crisp mint blouse with a soft yellow and pink orchid flower print, $18 to $34.

The denim pants and shirtjackets are all trimmed with sequins, beads or embroidery. One says Paris and features the Eiffel Tower while another says Rialto Bridge, and a corduroy set is beautifully embroidered with a nature scene of trees and small animals, $22 to $36. By the way, the denim story even extends to purses with zippered pockets.

Located on Route 1 near Texas Avenue, Robert Varga is open Monday through Saturday from 10 until 6, with Thursday and Friday evening hours until 9.

BROWSE, LOOK, TOUCH

At Guild n' Gallery. It is an unusual art gallery indeed that encourages you to browse, to look, to touch, and even to pause for some coffee. The Guild & Gallery Plus at the Montgomery Shopping Center is just such a place.

Although there are some extras, the gallery concentrates on three main areas — pottery, original artwork, and framing. At any one time 60 to 70 potters might be represented here, with all their work being hand-crafted originals.

Needless to say there is a wide range. We saw a cookie jar with ridges on the side that run from grey to turquoise, a large brown chalice cup with a lace sculpted onto the bowl, and a cream and sugar set in a burnt orange and gold glaze.

Other choices included a highly glazed brown cooking pot with a handle and pouring spout, small corked jars in green, blue or cream that say "smile," "junk" or "that," a large graceful pitcher in blues and browns, and a lemon squeeze with its own pitcher striped in brown, rust and grey.

Pottery Filled. Much of the pottery has been filled with dried flowers or plants, creating a pleasant atmosphere in the gallery. However the planters are for sale and we noticed many hanging ones such as a pretty blue and white planter and a brown bean pot strung with macramé rope.

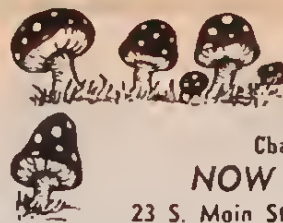

Some of the potters represented include Tim Galucci, Rosemary Taylor, Ingrid Jordan and Marilyn Garnick to name only a few, and all the pieces mentioned above cost between $9.50 and $20.50. While there is seldom a specific show, Guild & Gallery Plus has a continuing display of art. The works are constantly being changed. As with the pottery, the art is greatly diversified ranging from traditional to contemporary works.

There are watercolors by Donald Werden of subjects such as O'Neil's Barn and a meadow scene called White Oaks and Dogwood, a black and white etching in great detail of three owls by Jack Harris; and an acrylic painting by Michael Rothwell of huge orange flowers on a very white canvas.

Vivid Silk Screens. Some of the most exciting works were LeRoy Neiman's silk screens. He has used vivid colors and texture to portray a race horse in action and sailboats heeling in a rough sea.

We also enjoyed Norman Rockwell's portrayal of a young boy discovering a Santa suit in the bottom drawer of his father's bureau. The works mentioned are all framed and there is a 10-day home hanging policy so you can be sure of your choice.

won awards in several competitions and performed with the Washington Civic and Northern Virginia Opera Societies. One of a hundred singers and dancers chosen from a nationwide competition involving over 3500 applicants, she won a scholarship and a place as the youngest member of the 1972 Wolf Trap Company in Washington, D.C. She is a member of the Princeton University Glee Club and has performed as soloist. She is currently studying voice with Shirlee Emmons at Princeton University.

A senior at Princeton, Mr. Schmaus has studied voice, flute and piano. He has performed in a number of operettas including the Princeton productions of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado" and "Ruddigore." He, too, is studying with Shirlee Emmons.

The concert is free and open to the public.

CHAMBER MUSIC SUNDAY

At Princeton Inn College. Barney Lehrer, cellist, and Phyllis Alpert Lehrer, pianist, will present a recital of chamber works by Bach, Beethoven, Mendelssohn and Shostakovich Sunday at 2 as part of Princeton Inn College's Dominical Chamber Series.

Mr. Lehrer has performed as soloist with the Camerata Academia in Salzburg and is presently associated with that orchestra. Phyllis Alpert Lehrer is a visiting instructor of piano at Westminster Choir College.

The program will include Bach's Suite in C minor; Beethoven's Sonata, Op. 102 in C major, the Mendelssohn "Song without Words" for cello and piano, and Sonata in D, Op. 40 by Shostakovich.

LISTEN TO BROADWAY

Choir to Sing Hit Tunes. The Montgomery High School choir will present its second annual "Night of Broadway" in the auditorium Thursday at 8 p.m. The program, directed by Stephen Weicksel, a member of the faculty, will include selections from Broadway and screen plays.

Dressed in costumes representing Broadway shows, the choir will sing selections from "Oliver," "1776," "Bye, Bye Birdie" and "My Fair Lady." The Choraliers, a small female group, will perform a song and dance number from "South Pacific."

Flanked by scenery created in the 7th and 8th grade art classes, solo performances by Lee Sadat and Nick Enicks as Abigail and John Adams ("1776") and Kathy Kemp as

Some of the extras at Guild & Gallery Plus are sand candles by Bill Terry of bugs on short or long legs, a castle, or a crab, $3.25 and up; stainless and brass wind-chimes by Bill Cook, $12.50 and up; and Ted Ehmann's grocks.

A grock is a caricature made from specially selected Delaware River rocks that are glued together and painted. We saw a sportscar driver complete with car, a judge, a skier, and many others. The expressions are delightful, and they can be personalized by having a special order made from a photograph. Grocks cost from $20 to $300 for a floor-size one.

The gallery also does custom framing and carries a selection of artists' supplies. Located at the Montgomery Shopping Center on Route 206 in Rocky Hill, the store is open Monday to Friday from 9:30 until 9, Saturdays from 10 until 6, and Sundays from 11 to 5.

Snoopy ("You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown") will be presented. Admission is Free.

PIANIST FEATURED

In Choir College Recital. Internationally known pianist David Burge will present a recital Tuesday, March 19, at Westminster Choir College.

Beginning at 8, the recital will be held in the Westminster Play house and is open to the public without charge. However, tickets are required and may be picked up at the reception desk in Williamson Hall.

He has recorded music by most major 20th century composers and his most recent release is a recording of Pulitzer prizewinner George Crumb's "Makrokosmos, Vol. I," which he will perform on his Westminster recital.

Mr. Burge's program will include "Fantasy for Piano" by Lawrence Mosee, Aaron Copland's "Piano Sonata" and George Walker's "Second Piano Sonata."

ART In Princeton

EARLY SPRING SCENE
At Susuki, Kingston. Oriental brush painting by I-Han Chiang is a happy combination of classical techniques, formal themes and the occasional introduction of contemporary elements. An exhibition of his work will be on display at Susuki, 32 Main Street, Kingston, from Saturday through March 31.

Working in the traditional fashion, Chiang employs his brush eloquently in the expression of both line and tone. The textural effects of small forms work well with the carefully controlled areas of soft wash.

The eloquence of this artist's brushwork is apparent in both the black and white tonal studies and his color work. In both instances the majority of the paintings are classical in subject and form, but the occasional portrayal of a contemporary element reveals a great depth of personal response using classical tools.

Studies of roses and wisteria are expertly related in fresh soft color. Landscapes include more vigorous tone and structure. I-Han Chiang has exhibited in Taiwan, Japan and at a one-man show at Baylor University. He will be teaching at the Princeton Art Association.

AT SQUIBB GALLERY. The use of photograph as the basis for the current exhibition at Squibb Galleries, Princeton-Lawrenceville Road, is doubly significant. A superb collection of photographs has been assembled for this exhibit, with the opening night a benefit for the Retinitis Pigmentosa Foundation.

The meaning of research to prevent a disease that results in total blindness could not be clearer than at this display which is a graphic expression of the triumphs of human vision. The camera is used first as an extension of the photographer's ability to respond to his subject and the formations of space and pattern as a way of expressing the poetry of the moment.

The essence of the subject is then heightened in the darkroom and the finest results enable the viewer to experience a more intense response to his surroundings. Fifty-eight photographs have been assembled at Squibb Gallery. All are in color and have been scaled to the dimensions of the gallery in mural sized prints.

A range of subject and photostyle offer the most familiar as well as the exotic. International in theme, the photographs include conventional and innovative presentation of a multiplicity of subjects.

Among the photographers are David Douglas Duncan, Burt Glinn, Ernst Haas, Eliot Porter and Gordon Parks. Photographs from the collection are available for purchase in both exhibition size and smaller versions.

At the Eye for Art. Unusual drawings by Johan Schweitz can be seen at the Eye for Art. Schweitz has created wash drawings and garnished them with judiciously placed areas of paint and collage.

Using a vigorous and fluid line that is firmly controlled, he forms pleasing visual contrasts through calligraphic effects that interact with the muted washes and subtly-toned collage additions.

Although the drawings are basically studies in line and form there appears to be an occasional figurative reference.

Schweitz was born in Java, studied in Holland and lived in the Carribean.

At Gallery 100. Seascapes and shorelines by Eileen Shahbender are a pleasing blend of style and color. Beginning with the coast at Cornwall, this artist has reduced her subject to basic pattern and then enhanced it with a fantasy of rich sunny color and bright sky. Surface texture is used as a design element in both the construction of patterned form and in the heavy paint application. The majority of oils are carefully developed geometric relationships that capture the horizontal contrasts of any coastline.

At the Artisan. Color lithographs by Albert Garvey and Robert Muford are featured at the Artisan. Both artists use their medium with skill but present differing stylistic approaches within a similar framework.

Garvey uses a vigorous palette with strong colors in a stylized landscape. Occasional ventures into figurative work embody the same technique.

Muford combines symbolic forms for a surrealistic effect. Animals and acrobats are featured in many of his prints often performing in an unlikely fashion.

His palette is muted and the technique is generally precise with carefully-controlled silhouette. Occasional wash effects with lighter colors contrast with the more somber prints.

I
YOU
KNOW

Brought to you
By John Bernard

Ever wonder what was the longest successful shot ever made in a basketball game....The record is held by Jerry Harkness....In an American Basketball Association game in 1967, he threw a last-second desperation shot which went into the basket....It went 92 feet—almost from one end of the court to the other—and that stands as the longest goal in basketball history.

Did you know that Vice-President Gerald Ford once played in the College All-Star Football game....Ford played on the College All-Star team that lost to the Chicago Bears 5-0 in 1935 after his career as a football player at Michigan.

Here's a baseball oddity....When the great Mickey Mantle was a rookie in 1951, not only did he NOT win the Rookie of the Year Award in the American League—but he was not even voted the best rookie on his own team!....That honor that year went to third baseman Gil McDougald.

Dick Wood, Football Coach at PHS for 12 Years, Honored by 250 at Surprise Testimonial Dinner

They gave a surprise testimonial dinner-dance for Dick Wood Friday night at the Princeton Country Club on Route 1 and the warmth and esteem that the more than 250 persons who attended had for the man was so palpable that one could almost reach out and scoop it up by the handful. After announcing his retirement this fall from a football career that spanned more than 40 years, Wood was being honored by coaches, former players and friends. His voice filled with emotion, Wood observed during the chance he had to speak that "this is one of the biggest things that has ever happened to me."

When he sat down, the entire room rose and gave him a standing ovation. At his side was his wife, Mary, whom he had married in 1935. In the audience were his four sons, Dick Jr., Allen, Craig and Tom—each one of whom he coached in football, providing he said, one of the most satisfying elements of his career—and his two daughters, Karen and Peggy. The Rev. Keith Conover, a former PHS player under Wood, gave the invocation, after which Florence Burke, assistant principal, introduced the toastmaster, Ken Michael.

A Real Fan, Michael was principal at PHS for eight of the 12 years Wood was head coach. A former coach himself, he was an ardent follower of all of the school's athletic programs and a familiar sight was his pacing the sidelines during PHS home football games.

The first speaker introduced by Michael was Joseph Jingoli, who became head football coach in 1946 and under whom Wood served for 16 years. Others who spoke briefly were Frank Birch, former head of the industrial art department at PHS where Wood is an industrial arts teacher; Tom Murray, captain of the 1953 PHS team, and a former defensive coach under Wood; Bart Bennett, New Jersey state hurdling champion in 1966, who had Wood as a track coach and who described him as the person who had had the most influence on his life aside from his parents; and Steve Muench, former Ewing High School football coach and long-time rival of Wood, now the school's athletic director.

James J. Davidson, a lifelong friend of Dick's, presented a plaque from Mercer Engine Co. No. 3, of which Dick has been a member for decades. He recalled when Dick lived on Bank Street that all he had to do to get to the Chambers Street firehouse was to jump the fence. Jim Beachell, a member of the 1964 PHS squad and Wood's top assistant for the past five years, presented Dick with a players' presentation—a gold-plated clip board with an inscription. Wood has recommended that Beachell be named his successor.

From the Family. At the end, Craig Wood, now assistant football coach at Ewing and like his father an industrial arts teacher, presented his dad with a football figure by Princeton sculptor Joe Brown. Craig and Beachell were the prime movers behind the dinner.

All the speakers paid warm tribute to Wood's qualities of leadership and ability. "He's the kind of guy who, if you had a son playing football, is the one you would want to have coach him," said Jingoli. All remembered Wood as a gentleman, soft spoken but one who commanded respect.

Birch, who had taught Dick as a student, wryly claimed being responsible for the event, pointing out that he had steered Dick into a career at the high school and the industrial arts program. He went on to point out all the qualities that Dick had as a young teacher and coach, "and you know," he said, "he's still the same man today. What more can I say?"

Perhaps the best news was revealed by Murray. Presently a member of the coaching staff of Princeton University's 150-pound team, he announced that Wood wasn't through with football after all, but will join him in the fall as a line coach of the 150-pound squad.

Which is good news indeed. Coaches like Dick Wood should not be allowed to fade away—they should go on forever.

Victory by Half-Second in Final Event Gives Tigers Championship in Eastern Swimming

Princeton's swimming team, defeated in a dual meet by Harvard last month, 82 to 31, upset the favored Crimson here last weekend as it staged a dramatic and successful defense of its Eastern Intercollegiate championship. The final score was 419 to 411, with Dartmouth at 219 a distant third in the three-day affair, which drew entries from 21 colleges.

Coach Bill Farley's team won despite the fact that it captured only five first places to nine for the Crimson, greater depth in numerous events giving the Tigers fine balance. Two of the victors' individual titles were won by diver Bill Heinz, who became the first of his trade in nine years to score a double on the one and three-meter boards.

At the end of the first night's action, Princeton led Harvard, 131 to 100, but by Friday the Orange and Black a two-point lead, but still made it essential that it finish ahead of Harvard in the climactic event, the 400-yard freestyle relay.

Fred Test and Dan Lewin, swimming the first two legs, held their Harvard counterparts even. By the time Charlie Norelli touched out, he had given the howling Princeton fans a half-body length lead with which to raise the decibels in Dillon Pool.

Mal Howard then maintained the margin to earn the Tigers their second straight triumph in the Easterns. Princeton's winning time, a pool record, was 3:06.08—just 47-100ths of a second faster than Harvard.

Princeton Starts National Search for Talent To Aid Its Recovery Program in Ivy Football

When Bob Casciola took the job of coaching football at Princeton a year ago, it required the simplest sort of mathematics to show that nearly 60 percent of the players on the 1973 roster came from just three states: New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. "We must," the former All-Ivy tackle declared in his acceptance speech, "take a more national approach to recruiting."

This week, the current edition of "The Tiger's Lair," house organ for Princeton athletics, reports that:

"Princeton's commitment to a return to its former prominent role in the Ivy League football picture is reflected in its determination to seek out and to enroll student-athletes from across the length and breadth of the nation. This decision, backed wholeheartedly by the University administration and enthusiastically received by those alumni-leaders who were part of the decision-making process, can be the cornerstone in Princeton's return to a challenging position within the Ivy League."

Billed as "The National Search for Princeton," the program will rely heavily on alumni-athletes and non-athletes alike—to bring to Casciola's attention high school students who have the potential to earn admission here and to play good Ivy League football. "Coach Casciola and his staff have made a beginning by contacting numerous high school coaches and alumni in selected areas," the newsletter reports. "The response from alumni and coaches, as well as from potential candidates for admission, has been rewarding."

Casciola reports that "a football mailing to coaches throughout the country has brought us in contact with more young men than ever before. I am confident," he adds, "that this approach will enable us to find and identify a sufficient number of athletes who will both make and keep us competitive within the Ivy League."

"It is now essential," the Tiger coach concludes, "that we create a network of alumni contacts which will provide the follow-up that is necessary in convincing these applicants that Princeton is the right place for them both academically and athletically. Included in "The Tiger's Lair" are detailed rules listing "do's" and "don'ts" for those engaged in recruiting, as stipulated under Ivy League, ECAC and NCAA policy.

Backing for the National Search for Princeton comes from President Bowen with this comment:

"Admission Director Tim Callard and his staff are well aware of my own interest as well as Princeton's in attracting student-athletes with exceptional ability, and they are determined to do all they can to find students who, in addition to meeting our academic and other requirements, also promise to make significant contributions to the University's athletic program....Students with athletic ability constitute one of the special groups which receive particular consideration in our admission process. Certainly we intend to continue to give positive weight to athletic distinction when we rate our candidates for admission and when we make decisions concerning them."

A FIRST FOR PHS

Arcaro Regional Mat Champ. Princeton High School has its first Regional wrestling champion.

Angelo Arcaro, PHS 170-pound District 17 champion, became the first PHS wrestler ever to win a regional title when he defeated Pete Dankowski of Ridge High School, 4-2, Saturday night in Regional 5 final matches at Hunterdon Central High School in Flemington.

Dankowski, seeded No. 2 in the Regionals, entered the match with a 22-2 record. Arcaro raised his to 19-2.

He was joined in the NJSIAA state final matches, which were scheduled to begin Tuesday evening in Princeton University's Jadwin Gym, by Marty Short of Steinert High School, who also surprised everyone by winning the Regional 148-pound crown. Short's record is 18-2.

Jeff Drummond, PHS 188-pound entry in the regional matches, lost his first match, 4-1, to a boy from Piscataway, who went on to the finals before losing, 8-6. "He did a helluva job," said PHS coach Tom Murray of Drummond. "He has nothing to be ashamed of."

To reach his present pinnacle, Arcaro defeated three district champions. Friday evening in a preliminary match, he defeated the district champion from Piscataway, 8-0. "Angelo just tore him apart," said Murray.

In the semi-finals on Saturday afternoon, he decisioned the top-seeded entry from Plainfield, 3-1. "He's been wrestling beautifully," Murray said. "And he has the right attitude: he wants to win badly."

Murray added that he doesn't know anything about anybody, as far as the state matches are concerned. "All we can do from here on is hope. When you get to this level, one mistake can mean the match."

"So far, he's done what he's had to do and I think his chances are as good as anybody who's going to be down there."

Marvin Trotman

WILL HE OR WON'T HE?

Trotman Status in Doubt. Marvin Trotman, Princeton High School basketball coach for the past two and a half seasons, has dropped a hint that he may relinquish the job by next year.

Trotman has refused to be pinned down other than to say that he "has his own career to consider at the high school" and that that career does not necessarily include coaching basketball. He is one of several guidance teachers at PHS.

He has already given up coaching lacrosse. That sport will be coached this spring by Bill Cirullo.

Trotman took over the basketball reins at PHS from Larry Ivan in the middle of the 1971-72 season. PHS was 5-7 under Trotman that year and 7-17 overall.

Last season, Trotman guided the Little Tigers to an 18-6 record, and the team was described as Princeton's finest in 20 years. The record was marred, however, by a year's suspension from tournament play by the NJSIAA executive committee, which also censured Trotman for unsportsmanlike conduct following a fight among the fans after a game at Ewing in January.

This season, PHS finished 11-8. It was eliminated in the first round of NJSIAA competition last week by Monmouth Regional.

CONTE'S BAR WINS

Ends 3-Way Basketball Tie. Conte's Bar broke a three-way first place tie by defeating Ivy Inn and Kingston Wine & Liquor last week to capture the Adult Basketball League's regular season championship. El-De's eliminated Perks and PMC to gain fourth place and earn a berth in the playoff action now under way.

Conte's, facing powerful Ivy Inn without star player Craig Hannas (injured ankle), parlayed a tough man-to-man defense and accurate outside shooting into a surprising 22-9 lead midway in the second quarter. Then Ivy caught fire behind Mike Maguire and Tom Michaud to narrow the gap to just three (25-22) at halftime.

Three straight baskets by big Whit Rutter got Conte's off to a fast start in the second half, then Mike Desmond took charge. With Conte's ahead, 47-39, early in the final quarter, Desmond scored 12 of his 18 points to help wrap up a 66-54 victory. Rutter's 19 markers were high for Conte's while Maguire and Michaud paced Ivy with 17 each. Conte's came back to outlast Kingston W & L, 58-47, two nights later in the championship game. Kingston broke on top 6-9 as Bruce Coburn pumped in three straight, but Rutter's outside shooting (14 points) helped Conte's draw even at 24-24 by halftime.

Kingston solved the Conte's zone defense to forge a 33-28 advantage when Conte's switched to a man-to-man alignment. In the final four minutes of the third period, Conte's held Kingston to one field goal and Rutter scored the last six points as the barmen grabbed a 39-35 edge. Eight more Conte's points (4 by Rutter) at the onset of the final period made it 47-35 and Kingston could get no closer than six after that. Rutter finished with 27 for Conte's, Coburn netted 22 for Kingston.

El-De's ripped undermanned Perks, 65-39, in a fourth place elimination test. Perks, playing with only five men and minus three starters, could muster only a Mark Baldwin basket in the first quarter as El-De's romped to a 14-2 spread.

Perks fought back to trail just 21-15 at halftime, but soon ran out of gas against El-De's full court press in the second half as the game turned into a rout. Nine men scored for El-De's, with Charlie Madden's 13 showing the way, while Baldwin (22) was the losers' only effective scorer.

El-De's returned to outscore Princeton Medical Center, 71-63, and clinch the fourth playoff spot. Keying its defense on PMC's high scoring Dennis Wilson, El-De's shut out the league scoring leader in building a 28-21 halftime lead. PMC rallied briefly to close within one (30-29) early in the third quarter, but El-De's put together a 15-2 burst over the next three minutes for a commanding 45-

31 lead. PMC could never come closer than seven despite a desperation fourth quarter bid.

John Madden's 17 points and 15 by Willie Hill paced El-De's. Ellis Vincent had 17 and Ron Brown 15 for PMC, while Wilson managed just 14, less than half his average.

Conte's met El-De's and Ivy faced Kingston in best two-of-three semifinal playoffs this week. The winners will meet Monday, Tuesday and, if necessary, Wednesday for the playoff title, with games starting at 8 p.m. at the Princeton High School Gym.

PHS TRACK CHAMPS

In Winter Track. The Princeton High School winter track team (9-1) clinched the Mercer County Title last week with a narrow, 40-37, victory over Hamilton. The meet was decided in the final event—the high jump—which PHS swept.

Freddie Wilson paced the Little Tigers with a 6.7 clocking in the 60-yard dash to upset Hamilton's Mike Chianese. He placed second to Chianese in the 440-53.5 to 52.9—and took a third in the high jump.

John Woodside won the mile (4:43.8) while teammate Morgan Snyder was a fifth of a second behind, and Pete Nichol's 9:57 led a PHS sweep of the two-mile. It marked the ninth consecutive Little Tiger sweep in the event.

In their final meet of the season, the Little Tigers crushed Hunterdon Central, 61½-15½. The victors took first and second in every track event.

Mike White captured three firsts, winning the dash, high hurdles and 440. The losers broke Princeton's string by taking first place in the shot put and high jump.

The team was coached by Marc Anderson who says he is looking forward to even a better season next year. In commenting that he was extremely pleased with his team's record this year, Anderson noted that every member on the squad had shown improvement.

Harlem Globetrotters Here March 30

The ageless Harlem Globetrotters will bring their nearly universal basketball magic to Princeton University's Jadwin Gymnasium for one game only on Saturday, March 30. Starting time will be 8 p.m.

Another in the 1973-74 Jadwin Benefit Series, this appearance will provide funds for the Princeton-Blairstown Educational Center Scholarship Fund. The Center, located at the Princeton Summer Camp near Blairstown, conducts a variety of programs during the spring, summer and fall for groups from the campus, the community and the greater Princeton area. The Scholarship Fund enables young people to take part in the programs offered at the Center.

The Trotters, who have played in almost 100 countries, will feature the on-court antics of Meadowlark Lemon, the undisputed Clown Prince of Basketball. Joining him in the lineup will be Bobby Joe Mason, Jackie Jackson, center Frank Stephens, and dribbling sensation Freddy "Curly" Neal. Fans at the game will also be treated to a new edition of the all-star variety show presented at halftime of every Globetrotter game, and, of course, the famed Trotter warm-up circle, performed to "Sweet Georgia Brown."

Long time opponents for the Globetrotters are the Washington Generals. Among the Generals are two former New Jersey cagers, Captain Sam Sawyer who played for Atlantic City High School and Alfred Szolack, a graduate of Glassboro State College.

Tickets for the March 30 appearance in Jadwin, priced at $5 for side stand, $4 for end stand and $3 for upper balcony seats, will be on sale at the Jadwin Gym ticket office between noon and 6 each week day beginning March 18. Mail applications should be accompanied by 50 cents for mailing and handling. The ticket office telephone is 452-3538.

HUN LOSES BID

For League Title. Last week's loss to Lawrenceville for the state prep school championship was followed by yet another setback for the Hun School basketball team.

Friday, Hun, champions of the Northern Division of the Penn-Jersey League, lost to Friends Central, winners of the Southern Division. The score was 61-51. Hun was the defending league champion.

"We had a bad night," said Hun coach Dave Leete, who pointed out that two of Hun's starters were just coming off injuries that reduced their effectiveness. Biff Hollowell, the team's leading scorer who passed the 1,000-point mark a few weeks earlier, had half a dozen stitches removed from his hand the day before the game. He had been bitten by a dog.

Brian Logue, who had missed the last three games with a badly sprained ankle, played but his single basket during the game underlined his sub-par condition.

"On top of that, we drew a cold hand; we just couldn't put the ball in the basket," said Leete. "If we had been at full strength it might have been different...but they played well. They deserved to win."

Central had defeated Hun earlier in regular season play. Hun finished with a 21-7 record—matching its victories of last year when it won 21 and lost four. The 21 last year was the most wins ever for a Hun School quintet.

Against Friends Central, Brent Bystrycki and Tony Trani paced Hun with 14 and 12 points. Hollowell added nine and Dave Clark and Dave Pone six each. The victors, who led 16-10 after the first period, had four men in double figures.

From his starting five Leete loses Hollowell and Bystrycki, the team co-captains, and center Dave Clark. Also, reserves Mike Schwartz and Pone.

Returning are the two fine guards, Trani and Logue and Mike Trojanovitch who will form the nucleus for next year's team. Forty-two and eleven over the past two years is a pace that will be hard to match.

SAILORS OUT EARLY

Two Capsize on Carnegie. A windy Sunday afternoon brought exciting sailing and more than a little swimming to a few hardy members of the Carnegie Sailing Club Sunfish fleet.

The strong breezes, which featured sudden shifts and gusts approaching 40 miles per hour, caused two capsizes into the 40 degree water before the afternoon's racing had even started. Equipment suffered along with the sailors, as a bent spar and a broken tiller headed the list of damaged gear.

The winner for the day was Bob Holtzman, whose heavy weather skills allowed him to avoid a capsize and end the day warmer and drier than

A prohibiting law was issued by the Scottish Parliament in March, 1457, stating that "golf be utterly cryed downe." The game golf, then, must have existed before the year of 1457, and it must have been sufficiently alluring to require a law against it. In fact, it turns out that the Romans had a similar game, which could have been carried to Britain before 400 A.D.!

LAWRENCE SQUIRTS 2ND

In District Tourney. The Lawrence Squirt Peewee hockey team brought home second place trophies from the Middle Atlantic District Tournament last weekend. The competition was won by the Cherry Hill Gladiators.

Lawrence defeated Bergen-Rockland County in its opening game, 2-0, on goals by Bobby Schwartz, assisted by Mark Delehey, and Jeff Jamieson, unassisted. The shutout was the sixth of the year for goalie Ray Manyoky.

In the first game against Cherry Hill, Lawrence lost, 2-1, as only Timmy Hoisington could find the goal. The second game against Cherry Hill was tied 1-1 after a five-minute overtime, and the game was given to Cherry Hill on the basis of more shots on goal, 12-10. Lawrence had earned the tie when Schwartz scored on an assist from Mike Landis with only 16 seconds left in the game and the goalie pulled.

The previous weekend the Squirts won the Questa-Thomas Invitational Tournament at the Hill School in Pottstown, Pa. The Squirts, consisting of 9 and 10-year-olds, have a 21-3-1 record and play their final game at Cedar Grove in Newark this weekend.

PROS ARE ELIGIBLE

As Amateurs in Other Sports. The Mercer County Park Commission announces that it will operate all its sports leagues in accordance with the pro-amateur ruling recently adopted by the NCAA. This adheres to the current AAU rule and states that a professional in one sport will be allowed to compete as an amateur, so long as he is competing in a different sport.

Therefore, an athlete under contract or appearing in one professional contest will be ineligible for amateur play in his own sport. In the interests of conformity, this ruling has also been adopted by the Princeton recreation department and those of other municipalities in the county.

By virtue of a decision of the Appellate Division of the Superior Court, your pharmacist is now required to keep a drug profile record of your medication. Many pharmacies have been keeping such a record long before a regulation of the Board of Pharmacy made it mandatory, because a patient profile record system can save time, discomfort, or a life.

Today, many patients see two, three or a half dozen different practitioners of the medical arts, all of whom are licensed to prescribe medication. Frequently for one reason or another, these practitioners are not aware of medication which has been prescribed by another doctor. Sometimes two different drugs will conflict with one another; sometimes one drug will increase the action of another. Some foods will interfere with the desired action of a drug prescribed for you. Some over-the-counter "home remedies" will enhance or reduce the action of a prescription drug. Some people are violently allergic to certain drugs (e.g., penicillin).

Therefore, it is vitally important that your physician knows what medication you are taking prescribed by another practitioner, and it is equally important that your pharmacist knows it, too, plus any allergic reactions you may have had to foods, drugs, alcohol, etc.

REMEMBER!

If you are taking prescription medication, consult with your pharmacist before taking any over the counter drugs. He is as close as your telephone.
